GUNMEN ROB 3 BANK RUNNERS, GET AWAY IN HAIL OF BULLETS

GUARD BARREL TRIAL WITNESS

Heavily guarded against possible gangster attacks while he was on the witness stand, James Malino, one-time beer runner, today testified that he had been offered $200 to kill William J. Gregory for whose murder Philip Fazio, wildcat brewer, is on trial in Criminal Court.

Malino was brought into court flanked by county detectives. Two stood at each door and others stood at vantage points in the courtroom while Malino was on the stand.

REPEATS TESTIMONY

The commonwealth's star witness reiterated his testimony given at the coroner's inquest to the effect that Fazio, in his Lorigan street brewery, had offered him the money to kill Gregory, whose headless body was found in Penn Township, April 1.

While jailed near each other, Malino testified, Fazio yelled to him:

"If I lay around in jail you won't be walking the streets long. Why don't you keep quiet like Boots."

The blood-stained barrel in which the body of Gregory was found was brought into the courtroom today.

Six women and six men on the jury apparently were unperturbed by the sight of the gruesome exhibit which rested beside the jury box.

Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson planned to place the barrel in evidence against Fazio.

PHOTOS INTRODUCED

Harry Ross, county bertillon operator, was the first witness called at the opening of today's session, the second day of the trial.

He identified photos taken at the Lorigan street brewery, where the murder is alleged to have been committed, and at the place where the body was found.

James Malino, star witness for the state, was expected to take the stand today.

EXHIBITS IDENTIFIED

Witnesses called during the morning identified the exhibits. Thomas W. Kirk, of 318 Forty-fifth street, testified to finding the barrel containing the body. Clothes found in a sack by James W. Mason, Lincoln avenue and Verona road, were identified when

HELEN DEAF TO CAROL'S PLEAS

Appeals for Forgiveness Still Unheeded Despite Intercession of Royal Kin

International News Service.

BUCHAREST, June 10.—King Carol II, of Rumania, faced a domestic situation today that apparently was much more difficult than execution of the coup d'etat which had gained for him his once-renounced kingdom.

He still was seeking a reconciliation with his divorced wife, Princess Helen, mother of their 9-year-old son, Michael — until Carol's return, the boy King of Rumania.

Helen had turned a deaf ear to the alternate storming and pleadings of the temperamental romanticist, that she consent to annulment of the divorce granted her by parliamentary decree after he had left her for the charms of Magda Lupescu, red-headed wife of a Rumanian cavalry officer and daughter of a junk dealer.

Carol continued insistent today upon h[i]s re-establishment as head of his family. He had snatched Michael from Helen, despite her protests, then, penitently, had returned to her residence, only to depart shortly, taking his son and leaving Helen on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

THREATENS TO BRING MAGDA

The new King of Rumania had left Princess Helen's residence at Kisseleff Palace late yesterday with the threat he would send for Mme. Lupescu to join him if Helen would not consent to reconciliation. She conceded one point in deciding to let the King

City Wins First Point in Fight On Freight Rates

Pittsburgh industry has won a temporary victory in its three-way fight on freight rates and routes.

Donald O. Moore, manager of the traffic division of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, announced today that the Interstate Commerce Commission has indefinitely postponed its hearing, set for June 17, on its order abolishing circuitous rail routes used by Pittsburgh manufacturers.

This means that the present order of shipping will be in effect for at least six months from May 20.

Should the complaint of Pittsburghers against the abolition of the routes be heeded when the commission finally hears the complainants, one of the main advantages to shippers in this district will remain to give impetus to the district's varied industries.

According to Mr. Moore, Pittsburgh steel manufacturers would be deprived of four principal shipping lines to the east if the commission's orders to abolish the routes were carried out.

40 SHIPPERS AFFECTED

Over 40 shippers and consumers of steel are completing work of preparing evidence to be presented to the Public Service Commission June 18, when hearings will be held on complaints against increased rates of short hauls between mills and consuming plants in the vicinity of Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh rates on these short hauls of steel have been more than doubled in many cases, while those of other districts have not been affected by the general rate revisions. The cost of hauling steel within this district will be increased about $2,000,000 a year, according to local traffic

WICKERSHAM TALK STUNS DRY BLOC

Leaders in Capital Wonder If Hoover Knew Appointee Planned Volstead Attack

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—George W. Wickersham's outspoken criticism of the prohibition experiment, made in Boston before an audience of social workers, caused much uneasiness today among the dry forces in the capital.

There was a good deal of speculation here today whether President Hoover was aware of Wickersham's speech before he made it. The belief prevails that Mr. Hoover probably was as much surprised as some of the dry leaders by the vigor with which his appointee criticised "the great experiment."

'BUYER' BILL PUSHED

Undaunted, however, Senator Sheppard (Dem.), of Texas, declared today he was going ahead with his bill to make the buyer of liquor equally guilty of a felony with the seller.

Wickersham said, in effect, the American system and its penalties are too severe. In contrast, he cited the progress made in controlling the liquor problem in England and Wales by license and regulation, accompanied by education.

Few dry leaders would comment on Wickersham's speech for publication, but privately they were perturbed and inclined to ask if the chairman of President Hoover's Law Observance and Enforcement Commission had gone anti-dry.

WENT FURTHEST YET

In his Boston speech, Wickersham went further than ever before in finding fault with the prohibition set-up, as contained in the Eighteenth Amendment, the Volstead act and the Jones law.

The Jones law penalties, he said, are too drastic and in the nature of vengeful reprisals upon those who question legislative wisdom.

Force, he said, has been substituted for education. This has been a favorite talking point of the anti-drys in Congress for almost 10 years.

$2,000 LOOT IN EAST END ROBBERY

Savings and Trust Company Agents Lose Bauer Bakery Deposit; Police Spread Net

Three bandits held up three messengers for the East End Savings and Trust Company this afternoon and escaped amid a hail of shots with a satchel containing $2,039 in cash and a large number of checks.

The holdup was staged in front of Bauer Brothers' bakery, 6448 Penn avenue. The money had just been collected from the bakery by the bank messengers for deposit.

As the bandit car raced away, three bullets fired by William McFarland, of 6377 Aurelia street, cashier for the baking company, spattered against the rear of the machine. One shot shattered a rear window.

None of the bandits was injured.

The holdup men had lurked in a doorway leading to the baking company's garage, waiting for the messengers to come out of the bakery office with the money.

As the messengers stepped from the plant doorway into Penn avenue, the bandits rushed forward.

Two of the messengers, Earl Bayer, 20, and J. E. Wennogle, Jr., 18, had seated themselves in the front seat of their automobile and had placed the money satchel beside them when the bandit guns were pointed at them.

MESSENGER SLUGGED

Bayer said:

"I was about to start the motor of the car. I heard someone say, 'Turn it off.' I looked around and saw two men pointing revolvers at me."

Wennogle, the only one of the messengers armed, attempted to reach for his gun, but was struck on the head with the butt end of a pistol wielded by one of the bandits.

The holdup men then seized the

SEIZE BREWERY IN OVERBROOK

Prohibition agents today seized one of the largest beer plants taken in months, in the garage of J. L. Englert, Library road, Overbrook, they reported.

Output of the plant, according to Deputy Prohibition Administrator A. G. McDuffey, supplied the Mt. Oliver, Carrick and South Hills district.

In a room partitioned off from the rest of the garage were 15 vats each of 500 gallons capacity, 16 half-barrels of beer and five vats each containing 500 gallons of beer, said to be of high quality. A book containing names of 50 customers was seized, according to McDuffey. Englert was arrested.

BOROUGHS HIT BLUE LAW, 2-1

A marked sentiment against the Pennsylvania closed Sunday pervades in Aspinwall and Bellevue, revealed by a two-to-one majority favoring repeal of the Blue Laws in returns from the two boroughs in the poll of Allegheny County by the Sun-Telegraph.

Many of the homes in these two widely-separated north boroughs are represented by the returns to date, aggregating 660 from both. The substantial number of ballots from each—431 from Bellevue and 229 from Aspinwall—provide a reliable index of the state of mind of the voters in these conservative residential communities.

The ballots are divided:

Borough	For Blue Laws	For Modification	For Repeal	Repeal Ratio
Aspinwall	70	22	137	2-1
Bellevue	119	35	277	a-3-1

The division between men and women voters is: Aspinwall—For enforcement, 44 men and 26

6 SAVED, 1 LOST AS TUG SINKS

NEW YORK, June 10.—(INS.)—Six men were rescued and one is believed to have been lost when the tug Invader, towing a car float toward a freight yard on Staten Island, was swamped by high seas in the upper bay between Bayonne, N. J., and Robbins Reef Lighthouse today.

The accident in part was due to a breaking line between the tug and the barge, according to waterfront workers who saw the mishap.

Soused and Serene Capital Gets Dry No Faster

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(INS.)—Washington's liquor situation appeared today to be getting no better, despite President Hoover's attempt to make the capital the model city in law observance.

That drinking had increased was evidenced by police figures showing arrests for prohibition violations increased 31.8 per cent in the last three months over the corresponding three months a year ago.

The combined increase in liquor law arrests was 1,363.

DEPOT LOOTED AT BRADDOCK

County detectives today were searching for two men who escaped with $105 from a cash till of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station at Braddock after slugging the ticket agent on duty late last night. After the holdup the pair fled in a taxicab, according to a police report.

John E. Dean, of 202 Johnson street, Hazelwood, the agent, was alone in the station when the bandits entered. Dean, Braddock police said, attempted to resist the robbers' efforts, but was dazed when struck over the head by the butt of a revolver in the hand of one of the thugs.

Dean was taken to the Braddock General Hospital, where he was given first aid treatment. He was taken home later.

MOVE TO CLOSE 'PLANTATION'

Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington today filed in Federal Court an equity suit asking an injunction against three alleged proprietors of the Club Plantation, Babcock boulevard, and also the owners of the property.

Pennington charged that the club is maintained as a common nuisance. The bill of complaint did not allege that any sales of liquor were made in the club, but charged that liquor is brought there by guests.

A feature of the suit was a request that the United States marshal be ordered to take possession of the property in the event evidence showed the premises were used in violation of the law.

The suit also asked that if a violation were proven the court enter a decree impressing a lien on the premises and directing that the club be sold to take care of any fines or costs.

Named as proprietors of the club are Joe Rubin and Al and Lew Mercur and as the owners of the property, Granville and Charlotte Goosins.

College Girls 'Take Cold' For Pay—At $50 Per Cold

BALTIMORE, June 10.—(AP.)—As a group of scientists who for more than two years have sought the cause and cure of the common cold prepared to test cultures of the organism an independent investigator said he had found to cause the malady, four girl graduates of Goucher College are being used as objects of experiment, it was learned today.

The four, given their Bachelor of Arts degrees last week, agreed to let Dr. J. A. Doull, head of the group financed by the $195,000 John J. Abel fund, and his associates innoculate them with cold organism cultures and various serums for two weeks.

In return, they are to be paid $50, and given all the latest magazines to read during their close confinement at a local hospital.

The Abel fund group prepared to test the cultures of Dr. J. A. F. Pfeiffer, of the University of Maryland, an independent research worker, who, a few days ago, announced that after seven years' work he had found the microscopic organism that causes the common cold, and had developed a vaccine for preventive innoculation.

The Goucher graduates are Miss Margaret Frank, Philadelphia; Misses Lillian Moore and Mary Feaster, of Baltimore, and one whose identity was not made public.

Wedding Bells to Replace School Bells for Couple

BOSTON, June 10.—(INS.)—Boston University's commencement day, Monday, will be wedding day as well for two young Pennsylvania graduates from the university's School of Religious Education and Social Service.

The ceremony will be the culmination of a college romance which began when Miss Agness C. Howell came from West Pittsburgh and Frank W. Montgomery came from Huntingdon, Pa.

These two Pennsylvanians belong to a group of seven prospective bridal couples, most of whom will be awarded their college degrees next Monday. It was said at the university the students were taking literally the advice of one of their professors, Dr. David D. Vaughan, noted sociologist, who recently declared that a pastor's wife should be an able assistant for her husband.

REED, GRUNDY SAFE, TARIFF BILL'S OUTLOOK BRIGHT

SENATE O. K. EXPECTED IN 48 HOURS

Backers Certain President Will Sign After House Approves; Close Vote

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—With Pennsylvania's two high-protectionists — Senators David A. Reed and Joseph R. Grundy—reported safely back in the fold, Republican leaders today expected to secure final Senate approval of the administration's battle-scarred tariff bill within 48 hours.

If the Senate approves the bill Thursday, in its final compromise form, it will be rushed through the House by Saturday and forwarded to the President for approval.

The President will sign the bill, it was said.

The threatened bolt of Pennsylvania's two senators worried administration leaders for a few days, but the alarm has disappeared. Both Reed and Grundy affected silence on their attitude, however. Reed saying he would make an announcement shortly to the Senate.

Agriculture and industry will be benefited by enactment of the tariff bill, Senator James E. Watson (Rep.), of Indiana, the majority floor leader, told the Senate this afternoon in launching a final defense of the measure.

Watson cited three major reasons for enacting the bill. He said the measure had been pledged by the Republican party in the 1928 campaign, that agriculture would be aided by the bill and that it would create new markets in America for American products. He said the improvement of agricultural conditions would mean better times for industry.

MACFARLANE 'AT HOME TO NOBODY'

Recount Judge in Seclusion After Session; Hurries Away From Questioners

Judge James R. Macfarlane was "at home to nobody" in his chambers this afternoon after having conducted another closed conference concerning the affairs of his primary recount board.

He hurried from the recount board headquarters and secluded himself from those who followed him through the corridors seeking information as to his progress in the search for the vote list mysteriously missing from a ballot box being checked by the recount board. The board is operating under his direction.

CONFERS WITH LAWYER

The judge had conferred with Attorney Frank I. Gollmar, of the Pinchot organization.

The missing voters list, which is that of the First District, Sixth Ward, will probably become one of Allegheny County's unsolved mysteries.

Attorney Leander Trautman, chairman of the recount board, said:

"I don't know what will be done about it."

DISCREPANCY BARED

District Attorney Andrew T. Park said:

"We are not investigating the matter, and will not do so unless ordered to by the court."

The list contained the names of 532 voters checked as having voted at the primary election. There were 550 ballots in the box, indicating that either more people voted than were checked off, or that the box had been tampered with after the election board finished its count. The list was stolen from the ballot box Wednesday after the discrepancy was discovered.

Sheriff Robert S. Cain said yesterday that he is not making any investigation.

"I am simply the custodian of the boxes being recounted," Cain said, "and I am carefully checking them in and out of my office each day."

SEE LONG WAIT BEFORE INDIAN HOME RULE

British Investigators Find Natives Will Need Years Of Careful Preparation

By CHARLES A. SMITH.
International News Service.

LONDON, June 10.—India, straining at the leash of British domination, has many great obstacles to remove before it will be able to administer its own government, and much time must elapse before the "home rule" so fervently demanded by Indian leaders can b granted.

This is the chief impression gathered today from the voluminous report of the Simon commission, appointed two and one-half years ago by the British government to inquire into the entire political and social status of India.

The report, made public today, makes no recommendations, being merely a complete exposition of the conclusions drawn by the commission during its lengthy study. Issued in the form of a 409-page pamphlet, the report runs to approximately 200,000 words.

NATIONAL SPIRIT NEEDED

Main points outlined in the report are:

1—A national spirit must be engendered in the polyglot population of more than 300,000,000 people, which now compose the most heterogeneous country in the world.

2—A method must be found to establish co-operation among the many ecates of the Hindu religion.

3—Self-government will be possible only when a means is devised to bring about co-operation between Hindu and Moslem.

4—Education of the masses is vitally necessary.

5—Mahatma Gandhi's independence campaign is backed by only a comparatively small group of natives.

6—India would be unable to preserve home-rule without an Indian army, which is non-existent at present.

take Michael with him to Cotroceni Palace, where Carol is living.

Reports today were conflicting.

One was the flat statement Helen had agreed to annulment of the divorce and would become Queen.

Another said she had flatly refused to consider any reconciliation and would stick by this decision, remaining only in Rumania to look after Michael's upbringing.

FAMILY URGES REUNION

Strong political and family pressure was being brought to bear on Princess Helen, to effect the re-uniting of the royal couple. Prince Nicolas, Carol's brother, who had been instrumental in bringing about Carol's return and appointment to the throne, and ex-Queen Elizabeth, of Greece, Carol's sister, were making every effort to help the new king with Helen. The former Grecian queen is nursing Princess Helen after her breakdown of yesterday.

In affairs of state, King Carol had assumed his duties vigorously, meting out punishment and bestowing rewards. He has granted amnesty to military offenders and promised the same for political prisoners.

Three Liberal leaders who had opposed his return were ordered prosecuted on charges of lese majeste.

QUEEN MARIE TO RETURN

Queen Marie, in Oberammergau for the Passion Play, wired her congratulations to King Carol on his ascension to the throne. This belied rumors she might be exiled. Carol thanked her warmly and ordered a special reception for her when she returns from Germany, probably Saturday.

Carol May Establish Mme. Lupescu in Paris

BUDAPEST, June 10.—(INS.)—Failing to force a reconciliation with Princess Helene by threatening to bring Mme. Magda Lupescu to Bucharest, King Carol II of Rumania has decided to establish her in Paris, it was reported today in dispatches from the Rumanian capital.

That the woman for whom he deserted his family and renounced his royal rights, five years ago, may never be in want, the king has decided to make a settlement upon her of $1,000,000, these reports declared.

Previously, Carol had delivered an ultimatum to his wife, stating that if she persisted in her refusal to consider a reconciliation, he would bring Mme. Lupescu back to Bucharest.

HIGH COURT TO DECIDE VOTE CASE

Both Pinchot and Brown Aim To Appeal Luzerne Ballot Decision if Opponent Wins

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., June 10.—(AP.)—That the dispute over the use of perforated ballots in Luzerne County at the recent primary is to reach the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania was made certain yesterday when representatives of Francis Shunk Brown and Gifford Pinchot stated their intention to appeal in the event the decision of the local court was against either.

Taking testimony was concluded by the Brown forces yesterday at 3 p. m. Then the Pinchot attorneys asked that the record contain a notation that on the Saturday preceding election the Luzerne County Court had ordered the perforation of the ballots.

After a discussion between the four judges present and the attorneys, the judges retired for a conference. Thirty minutes later President Judge W. S. McLean returned to the bench and stated that the court would make no formal notations of its action in ordering the ballots perforated until the return of Judge W. A. Valentine from the Dickinson Law School commencement.

'Beat Pinchot!' Slogan At Association Meet

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—(AP.)—"Beat Pinchot" was the slogan adopted by more than 50 members of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment at a meeting here today.

The meeting, called by Robert K. Cassatt, chairman of the Pennsylvania division of the association, was attended by representatives of more than half of the 67 counties in the state. It was not disclosed exactly what efforts were to be made to defeat Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee for governor.

representatives. This will reduce Pittsburgh's ability to compete with other districts and may cause industrial plants to move to other cities.

The Interstate Commerce Commission June 16 will reopen the lake cargo coal rate case, which has been bitterly fought by coal producers for many years.

SEEK BETTER LAKE RATES

Local coal operators will attempt to procure freight rates on shipments to the lake ports which will permit this district to enjoy its natural advantage of nearness to the markets.

Two years ago the commission ordered a reduction of 20 cents a ton in the freight rate to the lakes. This increased the differential between this district and West Virginia mines from 25 cents a ton to 45 cents a ton.

The railroads serving the southern district followed with a slash which precipitated a rate war between railroads of the two districts. This was settled early in 1929 by a compromise rate which gave Pittsburgh a differential of only 35 cents a ton.

Coal men charge that unfair freight rates have been a predominant factor in causing the six-year depression in the industry here.

The totals are divided between men and women as follows: For the Blue Laws, 3,229 men and 2,891 women; for modification, 1,825 men and 1,219 women; for repeal, 21,060 men and 10,628 women.

More than 130,000 postcard ballots have been distributed throughout Allegheny County in the poll to date. The canvas is extended today to Forest Hills, Glassport, Glenfield and Greentree boroughs.

The vote to date from three wards of McKeesport and from the Borough of Crafton will be published tomorrow.

he took the stand. County detectives, including Chief W. Murren, also identified the exhibits.

W. C. Buckmeister, chemist, was subject to a severe cross-examination by Defense Attorney William H. Coleman after he had identified bloodstains.

The verdict hinges largely, Prosecutor Jackson admitted, on the credence that the jury of six men and six women place in Malino's story. He will tell them, Jackson said, that Fazio sought unsuccessfully, to persuade him to kill Gregory.

Malino's testimony will be the keystone supporting the case for the commonwealth, but Jackson declared he had ample corroboratory evidence. In his opening address to the jury, the prosecutor asserted he would prove that Fazio murdered Gregory because the latter had "double-crossed" him in a beer deal.

BODY IDENTIFIED

Introductory testimony, presented late yesterday, had to do with the discovery of Gregory's body, its identification, and the nature of the wound which caused death.

Dr. J. W. McMeans, coroner's physician, said Gregory was killed by a blow from a heavy blunt instrument. He admitted a wrench might have been used, as the commonwealth contends.

Wheeling Police Head Thinks Killer May Be Hiding There

WHEELING, W. Va., June 10.—Chief of Police Fred Frazier today stated that it was possible the slayer in the "headless murder case" at Pittsburgh may be hiding in Wheeling's gangland, as suggested by Pittsburgh attorneys defending Philip Fazio, Clairton, on trial there.

Newspaper stories last night told of the connection of the gangs in the two cities.

Three years ago a headless body was found in a barrel on a Bellaire (O.) dump, and the identity of the body never was established. A sensational liquor ring trial had just closed.

A witness for the government was Philip Maelin, Pittsburgh liquor runner. It was believed the headless body was his.

A itness to the robbery, Joseph Buechel, jewelry salesman, of 3707 Brighton road, rushed into the baking plant and notified Cashier McFarland.

McFarland seized a gun and dashed to the street.

The holdup, however, had been staged so swiftly that the cashier barely had time to send three bullets crashing into the rear of the bandit machine as it raced away.

H. W. Loos, vice president of the East End Savings and Trust Company, estimated the loot at $2,039 in cash and a number of checks, value undetermined.

Before the messengers had collected the Bauer Baking Company's funds, they had collected a deposit from an East End store and also $200 and a number of checks from the East End Police Station, representing the day's fines in Traffic Court.

Helen Upheld by Xenia In Renouncing Throne

By CROSWELL BOWEN
International News Service.

SYOSSET, N. Y., June 10.—By refusing to become reconciled with King Carol II, of Rumania, Princess Helen has done no surprising thing, even though it means sacrifice of a throne, Her cousin, the former Princess Xenia, of Greece, declares.

Princess Xenia, who not long ago divorced William B. Leeds, multi-millionaire New York sportsman and son of the late "tin plate king," today expressed her views on the tangle in Rumania to International News Service. She said:

"After all, Helen is divorced from Carol. Why should she become reconciled to him? She is leading her own life.

"Perhaps it is an unprecedented act. I was very much surprised, however, when I learned Coral had returned and taken over the throne.

"If Helen decides she wants to go back to him, that is her business. I may have my own personal opinion as to what I would do, but I would rather not express it. As I said before, Helen has her own life to lead.

"I remember well when Helen was married to Carol, 10 years ago in Greece. I was a little girl then, but the brilliance of the occasion made a lasting impression on me.

"Since her marriage, I have heard only occasionally from my cousin."

The defendants, Judge Parker ruled, had not been placed in double jeopardy as their counsel contended.

Attorneys Charles B. Prichard and Edward G. Coll, counsel for Lyster and Watts, will confer within a few days to determine their next step in their legal fight to save the two former coal and iron policemen, Prichard announced today.

OUT FOR RIVER SPEED MARK

NEW ORLEANS, June 10.—(AP.)—The Miss Greenville, a 26-foot speedboat, was here for an attempt to break the time record on the Mississippi River from New Orleans to St. Louis, but whether the start on the upstream dash could be made today depended on the time required to repair a bent propeller shaft.

The speedboat, with Capt. Eric Schelben, Co-Pilot Lewis Davis and George Schweizer, mechanic, aboard, roared into New Orleans harbor from Baton Rouge late yesterday. She arrived, however, with a bent propeller, suffered in a collision with a snag.

Capt. Schelben, of Greenville, Miss., owns the boat, and hopes to beat the record of Dr. Louis Leroy, of Memphis, for the river distance. Dr. Leroy, in his speedboat, the Bogie, made the run in 87 hours and 31 minutes in 1929. Prior to that time, the record was held by the famous old steamboat Robert E. Lee.

DIGNITARIES ATTEND RITUAL

Bishops, Abbots and Priests Crowd Sanctuary During Ceremony; Procession Held

By E. W. PRENDERGAST, Staff Correspondent.

LATROBE, June 10.—In a majestic ceremony today, Alfred Koch, priest and teacher, became the only Benedictine archabbot in the land.

In a sanctuary rich in the color of vestment and ritual, Bishop Hugh C. Boyle gave the blessing which transmits the power of office-head of the 75-year-old archabbey and president of the seminary and college of St. Vincent.

The blessing followed a solemn pontifical mass. The sanctuary was filled with white robed priests, abbots and bishops. In the church proper several hundred more priests from many lands augmented the throngs of graduates and parishoners of St. Vincent.

PROCESSION HELD

The services began with a procession at 9 o'clock. The bells rang, their music cutting through the heavy rain and smoky mists of the countryside. At the ropes were Brothers Clement, Augustine and Bartholomew.

Brother Clement, white-haired and 77, was admitted to the order by the first abbot, and has tolled his musical benediction on four successors. He was the last brother admitted to the benedictines by St. Vincent's first head, that was in 1886.

Meanwhile, the priests, visiting and those affiliated with the school, visiting abbots and the bishops formed a double line.

They walked slowly, rythmically, through the arched corridors of the monastery, behind acolytes with streaming candles and the cross-bearer.

CHANT RITUAL

Once in the church, the novices, priests and brothers in rows beside the altar, chanted the Gregorian ritual, soft and with its slight range of cadences.

Following the mass, the priests and prelates kissed the cheeks of the archabbot and his ring. One of the most unusual, and a rarely used ceremonial, followed the offertory of the mass. The archabbot turned to the celebrant, Bishop Boyle, and handed him two little silver casks. In them was wine.

The presentation was symbolic of the tribute of the priesthood of Melchisadek, priest of the Old Testament.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 10.—(AP.)—Tom Mix, cowboy film hero, who on the screen has pursued many villains many times, always with success, started 20 minutes too late to pursue his eloping daughter, Ruth Jane Mix, and today she was Mrs. Douglas Gilmore.

Tom Mix.

Mrs. Olive Stokes Mix, the girl's mother, and Tom Mix's divorced wife, was waiting to give them her blessing. She said today that she had opposed the marriage because the 27-year-old bridegroom had been married before and for other reasons, but that she would "help make the best of it."

The elopement became known through a note Miss Mix left in the traditional fashion before she departed for Arizona with Gilmore about 1 a. m. The Mix family lawyer was informed and he telephoned Sheriff J. C. Hunter, of Yuma County, to stop the ceremony. Hunter found the couple at a hotel. Given Bonds, Says Girl Held in $63,000 'Theft'

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—(AP.)—Miss Marian Birney, 29, landscape artist, was at liberty on her own recognizance today pending a preliminary hearing on grand larceny charges preferred by her father, Dr. Bascom Birney, 74, who accused her of absconding to New York with $63,000 in bonds belonging to him.

Judge George Steiger, who previously had fixed bail at $50,000, permitted Miss Birney to go free pending further action, following an explanation of her side of the case.

She said her father sent her the bonds a year ago with instructions to cash them and deposit them in her own name. She explained:

"He was having trouble with his second wife and didn't want her to get the money when they were divorced. Since, I have given him the income and some of the principal, which has increased through investments."

'Chore Man' Sues Woman For $50,000 Balm

ELYRIA, O., June 10.—(INS.)—A $50,000 breach of promise suit was filed in Common Pleas Court here today by Fred W. Morley, 24, of Angola, Ind., former Oberlin College student, against Mrs. Ruth Grant Markham, 23, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Grant, however, married Cyril E. Markham, of Philadelphia, April 12. This, Morley avers, caused him to lose the advantage of a desirable matrimonial alliance."

An emphatic denial was entered by Mrs. Markham, who said she became acquainted with Morley when he was given odd jobs about the Grant home, to help him pay his way through college. She added:

"I never even let him think I intended to marry him."

WOMEN'S CLUBS BALK FILM ACTION

Federation, However, Accepts Report of Mrs. A. N. Diehl, Of Pittsburgh, on Inquiry

DENVER, June 10.—(AP.)—It became known today that a closed session of the General Federation of Women's Clubs executive committee thwarted a scheduled challenge on the floor of the convention to the activities of members of the Federation in the field of motion pictures.

A resolution had been prepared for presentation expressing disapproval of present and past officials of the federation occupying lucrative positions by motion picture companies, but it was learned that at a recent meeting the committee tabled a letter and telegram from two women's clubs of Baltimore protesting activities of Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, Pasadena, Cal., and the author of the intended resolution did not attend the convention. Mrs. Winter is assistant director of public relations for the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

ADOPT REPORT

Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, president of the federation and chairman of the executive committee, waited half a minute for "other remarks" after the adoption of the report of Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl, Pittsburgh, had been moved, but there was no response from the auditorium. The report, setting forth the accomplishments of the motion picture committee of which Mrs. Diehl is chairman, was adopted unanimously amid applause.

Mrs. J. Allan Hoover, of Baltimore, who announced publicly that she intended to introduce a resolution condemning the use of the federation's name in the promotion of private enterprises by members, pleaded illness in explaining her absence from the hall when the Diehl report came up for approval.

MRS. SIPPEL UNOPPOSED

The re-election today of Mrs. John S. Sippel to the presidency of the Federation was expected as a matter of routine, earlier opposition to the customary second term having apparently dissolved.

Mrs. Edward Franklin White, Indianapolis, a proposed opponent to Mrs. Sippel, was reported by her backers as having declined to be a candidate. Mrs. White opposed Mrs. Sippel's election at the nineteenth convention.

The nominating committee already has endorsed incumbent officers for re-election with one exception, Mrs. Florence Reynolds, of Paducah, Ky., who will be succeeded at the expiration of her term by Mrs. Edward Hammet, of Sheboygan, Wis.

TURKEY, GREECE SIGN TREATY

ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 10.—(AP.)—A treaty of friendship between Turkey and Greece was signed here today.

The long awaited agreement was considered a prelude to Turko-Greek amity pacts entailing a trip of Premier Venizelos in October to Angora.

The Turkish press said that consummation of the friendship agreement made the Turkish horizon more peaceful than it had been for six centuries. Twenty thousand Greeks in Istanbul who under the accord are recognized as established residents, especially welcomed the treaty.

The accord calls upon a mixed commission for settlement within six months of 1,000,000 property claims remaining among the claims of approximately 1,500,000 Greeks formerly sent from Turkey to Greece and 400,000 Turks sent from Greece to Turkey.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 10.—The first Monday in July was fixed by Judge A. H. Sayers for arguments on a new trial for William Camardo and Joe Vita, Masontown, convicted last week of illegal transportation of liquor.

MARION DAVIES IN DRESS OF BELLE OF 1890'S

Miss Davies in a gown made of six bolts of cloth and wearing an ostrich feather headpiece. She's giving cash prizes for the best letters on the styles of 1890 and 1930.

Mother of Six Deplores Fashions of Nineties, Miss Davies Hears

HOLLYWOOD, June 10.—Mothers who survived the rigors of the "Gay Nineties" do not want their flapper daughters to have to endure a revival of those fashions.

Aside from the comfort of present-day styles, there is a charm and grace which those of the 90's lacked, according to Mrs. Dora MacFarlane, 24 Clarence street, Everett, Mass.

Mrs. MacFarlane's views were expressed in a letter received in the Marion Davies Fashion Contest at the new Pantages Theater where Miss Davies' latest picture, "The Florodora Girl," is being shown.

"I am the mother of six children, all girls, who are just beginning to blossom into womanhood," wrote Mrs. MacFarlane, "and I know I have some task ahead of me to keep them in the styles of today. Let us hope they will continue as they are now. I for one would not care to see hair pins, corsets, rats and the like come into vogue again. A girl of today appears to be more healthy, more athletic, and even sweeter looking than those of long ago. Of course, in olden days those styles were thought marvelous, but as I look at them today, what a comfort it is to be without so much discomfort in the summer.

EASY BOARDING CARS

"How pleasant to board a car rare free of long skirts to pull up with, perhaps, an armful of bundles. How much neater the hair looks, free of rats, puffs and millions of pins.

"Somehow a girl takes more pride in her personality. Her hosiery has to be free of wrinkles and the seams perfectly straight. Her complexion also has, to my estimation, a lot to do with her appearance and rouge and powder, if properly applied, makes a girl attractive. I sincerely hope when my girls are all older we will have the same styles. Let us hope we have closed the chapter on long skirts, corsets and the rest."

Other letters follow:

WILL FOLLOW STYLES

"Dame Fashion is a hard master and woman is a slave to fashion. If the styles of the 90's should come back the average lady will accept them.

"FLORA S. RENDAK,
"1229 Thirty-third avenue, Oakland, Cal."

FOLLOWS MAN'S ATTITUDE

"The evolution of style goes hand-in-hand with the general mental attitude of man. It has been progressive and the changes wrought have effected a change in the relationship between man and woman. Moreover, a continuation of progress will bring about the ideal relationship — one which will be an exact analogy of that which the true artists bears to his model.

"JOHN J. McGRATH,
"7850 Brandon avenue, Chicago, Ill."

LAUGHS AT IDEAS

"It is quite laughable to read what some men and women say of the styles in the gay nineties being more becoming to girls and women.

"They did not have to wear them, dear.

"MRS. J. D. ROBENA PETERSON,
"Detroit, Mich."

OLD STYLES UNWELCOME

"I am much afraid our girls and young women of today would not welcome those fashions any more than we older ones wanted the reappearance of the hoops again.

"GEORGIA H. SCHMITT,
"262 West Fulton street, Gloversville, N. Y."

BELIEVES IN DISPLAY

"What is wrong with a woman's body that she must disguise, hide and shackle it? God made women beautiful for man to look at. Within the bounds of decency and good taste, women should be encouraged to make the most of their charms.

"Eyes are more seductive than most of the legs we see, so why not require women to wear smoked glasses to please the reformers.

"By the way, did you ever see a reformers wife?

"EDWARD LEE BENNETT,
"1280 Neal street, N. S., Washington, D. C."

DAWN OF FREEDOM

"So the dawn of freedom in women's dress is here. From now on she will not be bound so much by what Paris wears, what Hollywood wears, what anybody wears, but decide for herself. And, there will be corsets and no corsets, and there will be long skirts and short skirts and—pants.

"BERTHA L. MINER DOBBINS,
"123 Carnahan avenue, San Antonio, Tex."

AFTER MORE RECORDS

"Women of this generation have broken records in sports, on land, on sea and in the air; in business, in politics. Equality and freedom at the price of glamor!

"J. PINE R. PALMER,
"Sanford, Fla."

Can You Write On Style?

Do you remember the famous Florodora Sextette?

Are you familiar with the styles of the gay nineties?

Do you prefer those styles to the fashions for women today?

Do you think those styles are coming back?

Put your ideas in a letter and send it to Miss Marion Davies, the New Pantages Theater, Hollywood.

$1,000 in prizes will be awarded for the best letters.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a woman.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a man.

MUM ON FEES, SENTENCED

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP.)—Dr. William F. Doyle, whose eight years' practice before the Board of Standards and Appeals are estimated to have brought $2,000,000 in fees, today was under a 30-day sentence for contempt of court for refusing to tell with whom he split the fees during 1922, 1923 and 1924.

Federal Judge John M. Woolsey signed the imprisonment order yesterday after Doyle had refused for the third time to answer questions before a federal grand jury concerning persons with whom he had divided the fees. Previously he admitted splitting the fees.

Investigation of Dr. Doyle's activities was begun after Mrs. Lottie Cutler had testified in a bankruptcy hearing that it had cost her $10,000 to get a filling station permit from the Board of Standards and Appeals. She said Dr. Doyle represented her and was paid $5,000.

BUSINESS BOOM PREDICTED

BILOXI, Miss., June 10.—(AP.)—The awakening of renewed activity in building enterprise, in electrical development, in food distribution and in the radio, cinema and automobile fields is forecast by J. A. Bandi, of New Orleans, vice president of the Canal Bank and Trust Company. He told the National Association of Building Owners and Managers he believed the return to normal business would be achieved within six months.

The association's convention was opened yesterday with addresses by Bandi and Paul M. Robertson, of Indianapolis, president of the association.

Robertson, in his address, praised the Hoover business service conference, saying that it had released millions of dollars for building trades payrolls through the rehabilitation of old buildings.

CHAMBER PARK PLAN PUSHED

The recreation committee of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting yesterday laid plans for a campaign through the summer to organize public sentiment in Allegheny County for the chamber's proposed $1,380,000 all-year water park at Squaw Run, on the Allegheny River.

E. T. Whiter, chairman of the committee, stated that the public will be acquainted with the park plan through the medium of illustrated lectures, booklets, tours to the site and general publicity.

The natural advantages of the Squaw Run park, according to John M. Rice, engineer-member of the committee, will reduce to a comparatively small sum the cost of constructing the center, once the land has been purchased.

France, U. S. to End Double Taxation

PARIS, June 10.—(AP.)—Agreement between France and the United States to abolish double taxation was said today in official quarters to be almost in sight. Remaining details may be ironed out within the next few days, although no accord is likely for a week or so. The agreement will afford relief to American subsidiary firms in France, which have suffered through being taxed both at home and abroad.

Poison Ivy Makes Banquet for Goats

RUMSON, N. J., June 10.—(AP.)—Goats like poison ivy, as well as tin cans, in fact they thrive on it. Efforts to rid the estate of Lorillard Suffern Tailer of ivy caused gardeners to have swollen hands and faces. The ability and delight of the goats was discovered by accident. The herd was increased from six to 23, and the ivy disappeared.

OUTPUT OF HARD COAL SPEEDED

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—Production of anthracite during the week ended May 31 showed a greater daily gain than in the preceding week, the Bureau of Mines reported, although total net production was 55,000 less for the week, due, it was explained, to idleness at the mines on Memorial Day.

In the week ended May 24, 1,303,000 tons were mined in six days as against 1,248,000 in five days during the week ended May 31. The average daily output in the former week was 217,200 tons; in the latter week 249,600 tons, while the daily average for the 1929 corresponding week was 253,200 tons.

Total national production of bituminous coal for the week ended May 31 was estimated at 7,594,000 net tons, which the bureau found to be 67a,000 tons less than was mined in the preceding week.

Pennsylvania bituminous mines for the week ended May 24 produced 2,392,000 tons as compared to 2,389,000 in the week ended May 17.

HOOVER DENIED PEACE PRAISE

INDIANAPOLIS, June 10 (Universal).—A plank commending President Hoover for his efforts toward world peace will not be recommended to the state Democratic convention, which opens here today.

Behind this statement lies a story of a bitter fight in the platform advisory committee yesterday.

The committee after an acrimonious discussion had prepared a resolution to recommend to the convention which read:

"We commend President Hoover for following the lead of President Wilson in his endeavors on behalf of world peace."

After considering the action which would have been almost unprecedented in an Indiana Democratic convention, opponents of the plank gained the ascendency.

Paul V. McNutt, former national commander of the American Legion, is prepared to excoriate the President, and the London naval conference, in his keynote address.

2 QUARRY POOL VICTIMS FOUND

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—(AP).—Police of Souderton, Pa., have recovered and identified the bodies of two persons and were grappling for five others, all of whom drowned Sunday when their automobile plunged into an abandoned stone quarry about a mile from Souderton. Six of the victims were members of one family. All were Philadelphians.

The dead are: Mrs. Emma Wisham, 69; Miss Ella Wisham, 45, a daughter; Elmer Wisham, 43, a son; Mrs. Helen Wisham, 45, wife of Elmer; Harold Wisham, 14, son of Elmer and Helen Wisham; Thelma Nabors, 3, daughter of Mrs. George Nabors, a daughter of Mrs. Emma Wisham; Ralph Cupitt, 45, friend of the family and driver of the car.

The accident was not discovered until Monday, when a man passing the quarry saw two hats floating on the water. He also observed a break in a wire cable that guarded the quarry and a broken post and notified Chief of Police G. E. Kulp.

Returning to the quarry they saw the wreckage of an automobile at the bottom of the pit and some time later the bodies of two women came to the surface.

Souderton authorities said they believed the driver of the car became confused or lost his way during a heavy rain and turned from the main road into a driveway that circles the quarry.

Sister Receives Tardy News of Leteve Death

Although Dr. Aime Leteve, of Pittsburgh, founder of the Pasteur Institute in America, died last March 22, his sister, Mrs. Marie Leteve Baptiste, of Cleveland, did not know he was dead until last Saturday. Dr. Leteve was widely known by physicians and surgeons of this country.

Mrs. Baptiste, a widow, is employed in Cleveland. Mrs. Sarah A. Leteve, widow of the doctor, tried in vain to reach her sister-in-law to notify her of her brother's death. Last week the sister was finally found through the postmaster in Cleveland.

A Special Showing of

Wamsutta Sheets and Pillow Cases

Just how beautiful and luxurious the finest of cotton sheets and pillow cases can be, is being shown today and tomorrow by a style consultant from the Wamsutta Mills. It is a display that should be of particular interest to the June bride.

In this impressive collection are sheets and pillow cases in exquisite solid colors—aquamarine, peach, maize, lavender and rose, appliqued with laces from Brittany or Milan, or with tawny insets of antique cordenella. There are delicate designs of tulips and sea gulls, jacquard woven on snowy white borders. There are, too, white sheets with 9-inch pastel hems and all-white with Philippine embroidery. Some have monograms in matching or blending tones.

In the exhibit are two four-poster miniature beds dressed in exact replica of a regular size poster bed, with monogrammed sheets and taffeta silk quilted and flounced coverlets, one in peach-and-green, the other in French blue-and-peach.

Widows of veterans who formerly had to be 75 years of age to get a $40 monthly pension now may get it at the age of 70.

MOTHERS CAST WREATHS IN SEA

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP)—To honor the memory of American soldiers, sailors, marines and coast guards who lost their lives at sea during the World War, California Gold Star Mothers on their way to France to visit the graves of their sons cast four wreaths into the Atlantic from the S. S. America.

While a bugler sounded "taps" and flags flew at half mast, wreaths were dropped overboard by Mrs. Ettie M. Brown, of Hollywood, and Mrs. Emily Andrews, Mrs. May Brucker, and Mrs. Ellen Kelly, of San Francisco.

The Rev. Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of New York's famous "Fighting Sixty-ninth," who is journeying to France to make arrangements for his regiment's reunion there next year, and the Rev. E. Bertram Runnall, of Cavalry Church, Syracuse, were speakers at the ceremony.

BLAST IN PIPE MILL HURTS 2

LANCASTER, Pa., June 10.—(AP)—A man and a woman were severely burned when an explosion, followed by fire, occurred at the plant of the Lancaster Pipe Mounting Company, here. Thirteen other employes escaped, uninjured, through a rear exit.

Florence Beichler and John A. Herr were the injured employes. Both were taken to a hospital.

The explosion bulged the sides of the two and a half stock brick structure and the fire broke out immediately, the inflammable material used in the manufacture of pipe mountings and umbrella handles being ready prey to the flames.

The explosion, the cause of which has not been determined, weakened the walls of the structure and they collapsed while firemen were fighting the blaze. Firemen reported the flames under control after two hours of fighting.

'POOR SAPS' GET PRISON TERMS, LAWES SAYS

Warden Would Free 70 Per Cent of All Convicts and Give Life to Remainder

NEW YORK, June 10 — Forty per cent of the inmates of American prisons should be sent home, Thirty per cent should be paroled. The other 30 per cent should be sentenced for life.

The figures are those of Lewis E. Lawes, warden of Sing Sing prison, and are revealed in the July issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine.

It's the "poor sap" who is sentenced for life, years or for life, Lawes believes. His article continues:

"The real crooks escape punishment. I can't repeat too often that our prisons are filled with men who should be home and at work. They are no more real criminals than most of us. Only we have had the breaks. The hard luck has not turned on us."

Lawes has several suggestions for bettering America's penal system.

He would have all sentences made indeterminate with a non-political parole board in control. This board would be empowered to liberate the majority of prisoners, under supervision, at once or after short terms, and keep the minority of antisocial confirmed criminals perpetually confined. Commenting on the effect of this system, he said:

"It would put hope back into the prisoners' souls. Definite and inelastic sentences have destroyed all hope. And lack of hope, bad breaks or sour hash or overcrowding has been the primary cause of the terrible epidemic of prison riots."

REJECT TREATY ON SMUGGLING

GENEVA, June 10 — (AP) — The United States government officially frowned upon a general treaty for the suppression of smuggling. The State Department in a formal reply to a communication on the subject to the League of Nations discountenanced the advisability of such a pact as of no great assistance to that country.

"While smuggling, from the economic and fiscal point of view," the note said, "is of importance to this government, a general treaty on the subject would probably not be of great assistance to the United States at this time.

"Since the adoption of prohibition, bilateral treaties in regard to this question have been negotiated with 14 countries. These so called 'liquor treaties' provide for the search and seizure of suspected smuggling vessels on the high seas within one hour's sailing distance from the coast of the United States, and as a quid pro quo ships flying the flags signatory to these conventions are allowed to bring liquor into United States ports under seal."

CHILD TRAINING LAXITY HIT

BOSTON, June 10 — (AP) — Treatment of the parent may be required to remedy the case of the "problem child," Miss Lee Sharp, supervisor of children's work of the Jewish Social Service Bureau, Chicago, informed delegates at the National Conference of Jewish Social Service here.

"The over-solicitous parent who prolongs the period of the child's dependency long after he should show interest in becoming independent," said Miss Sharp, "needs individual treatment, even as the child."

ASK PUBLIC AID IN MUSIC FIGHT

BOSTON June 10 — (AP) — The music lover and not the musician should lead the fight against mechanical music, Joseph N. Weber told the delegates to the thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Federation of Musicians which opened here. He was joined in his opinion by Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

"This is a cultural fight and must be won in the name of culture and not through boycott on theaters because a few musicians lose jobs," Weber said.

"We would not protest any machine that would benefit the workers and the people at large, but we do protest machines that are devised solely to give a few people money at the expense of many, which would make this a nation of listeners instead of a nation of music producers."

Boris Morros, general music director for the Paramount Publix Theaters of North America, told the convention that the company he represented planned to have double the number of musicians at its theaters in the coming year.

Woman on Trial In Mate's Death

READING, Pa., June 10.—(AP)—Indicating that it did not plan to press for a first degree murder verdict, the state called to trial Mrs. Johnnie Jones, charged with the slaying of her husband, George W. Jones, last February 26.

Mrs. Jones, mother of two children, who met her husband while he was a soldier during the war, in Texas, broke down in court and wept bitterly when police were put on the stand and related how they had found her in the bedroom of their home after her husband had called for an ambulance, saying he was shot.

SOUCEK AFTER NEW RECORDS

WASHINGTON June 10.—(AP)—Monarch of the upper air with a new world airplane altitude record of 43,166 feet, Lieut. Apollo Soucek made plans to better both that mark and his world seaplane altitude record.

The airplane record, made last Wednesday on the anniversary of his record seaplane flight, was recognized by the National Aeronautic Association after the official barograph had been calibrated at the Bureau of Standards.

It exceeded by 1,372 feet the existing record of 41,794 feet held by Willi Neuenhofen, German aviator. In 1927 Capt. Hawthorne Gray ascended 42,470 feet in a balloon.

Soucek said he would devote the remainder of the week, if weather is favorable, to attempts to better both his records.

For the seaplane flight, the landing wheels will be replaced with pontoons as they were last year, when Soucek established the existing record of 38,560 feet.

CONFESSES 250 AUTO THEFTS

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., June 10.—(AP)—Dan La Rose, 21, of Columbus, O., who was arrested in the Baltimore and Ohio yards at Benwood on a charge of trespassing and pistol toting, told authorities he was a fugitive from the Ohio Reformatory at Mansfield, O., and that he had participated in the theft of more than 250 automobiles during the past three years in different parts of the country.

La Rose said he escaped from the reformatory last Easter and that he had since been in British Honduras and Cuba. He said his partner was in rogue's galleries in San Francisco, New York, Chicago and other cities.

Reformatory officials have been queried regarding La Rose's story. He was given six months for pistol toting when arraigned in Magistrate's Court.

RENO, Nev., June 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Lyttia Wallace-Gilbert, Harlem novelist, New York writer, was granted a divorce from Lawrence Tarbuck. The cause of action was listed as mental cruelty.

Mrs. Tarbuck is the daughter of the late J. P. Whitson-Stewart, of Bedford, N. Y. In 1923 she eloped to Elkton, Md., and married Eric Tarbuck. A divorce followed, and subsequent she married Tarbuck.

Hoover Seeks Fund For Roosevelt Shaft

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—President Hoover asked Congress for $25,000 for a memorial to Theodore Roosevelt on the boundary between the Clark and Pisgah national forests in North Carolina, marking the summit of the Black Mountains there.

The monument and area would be created under an act approved June 2 to provide for commemoration of Roosevelt's leadership in the cause of forest conservation.

FACES COURT AFTER 4 YEARS

BALTIMORE June 10.—(AP.)—Edward Willie Nemoth, alleged Chicago gangster and racketeer, today faces Baltimore courts, ending their efforts of four years to place him in the dock to answer to an indictment charging complicity in the $47,000 Sonneborn payroll robbery of 1926.

Nemoth will be taken before Judge Robert F. Stanton to plead to the indictment which was returned against him shortly after four employes of the Sonneborn Company were held up at the entrance to the clothing company's plant here. For four years he successfully fought extradition from Chicago where he was arrested shortly after the indictment was returned.

Herbert R. O'Connor, state's attorney, who fought to bring the gangster back to Baltimore, will ask that trial date be set.

Mr. Landlord:

$17 per month installs these three "Standard" Plumbing Fixtures

DO you know that you can install the necessary plumbing fixtures to modernize the bathrooms of your properties by making a small initial payment and paying the balance in convenient monthly installments? The "Standard" Time Payment Plan enables you to do this, and offers you an opportunity to make these very much worthwhile improvements out of current income.

Isn't it true that when a house or an apartment is being inspected by a prospective tenant, the bathroom often is the deciding factor? If there are modern plumbing fixtures in the bathroom—fixtures having all of the charm of up-to-date design and all of the rich beauty of "Standard" Plumbing Fixtures in the new colors, it is much easier to secure desirable tenants. Nor is it surprising that these tenants are better tenants, the sort who appreciate perfect sanitation and a bathroom that is beautiful as well as useful.

Isn't $17 a month surprisingly little for a "Standard" built-in bath, pedestal style lavatory and a modern, efficient water closet? There are other groups for $14, $16, $22 and $24. Any individual "Standard" Plumbing Fixture may be purchased for a small down payment and a little each month.

You may not have thought of the bathroom in this light before. Possibly there are a number of out-of-date plumbing fixtures in the bathrooms of your houses or apartments. Wouldn't new baths, well designed lavatories and sanitary water closets—all equipped with "Standard" Re-Nu fittings—make a difference in the renting of your houses or apartments?

If you would like to make these improvements which attract and keep better tenants and enable you to secure higher rentals, ask your plumber, or come here, to the "Standard" Showroom, for complete information about the "Standard" Time Payment Plan.

Features of the "Standard" Time Payment Plan:

1. Small down payment.
2. Easy monthly payments.
3. Concerns only you, your plumbing contractor and this company. Your note is not sold to an outsider—it is held by this company. You are dealing with the world's largest manufacturer of plumbing fixtures.
4. This plan makes it possible for you to pay for "Standard" Plumbing Fixtures while you enjoy all their benefits.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

A DREAM COMES TRUE!

Pittsburgh at last will assume a celestial position in the radio world it helped create.

From KDKA studios in the William Penn Hotel there will originate over 33 stations tonight one of the biggest features on the NBC network — the Westinghouse Salute. Not only tonight but every Thursday night for the balance of a series.

Charles Marshall

In Pittsburgh we have orchestras, conductors, continuity writers, production men, announcers, operators as capable as those anywhere — and tonight the cast of Westinghouse Salute will prove it!

Frederick G. Rodgers, the head man in tonight's fireworks, has yearned this opportunity for years. So have T. J. Vastine, Victor Saudek, Louis Kaufman, Marquis Chisholm, J. W. Williams and boys of the orchestra.

Except for the short appearance of Charles Marshall, tenor of the Chicago Civic Opera, the program will be produced entirely by Pittsburghers.

More network programs should originate in Pittsburgh, the cradle of radio broadcasting.

All loyal citizens will root for Pa Pitt tonight in his first major radio effort.

The WCAE boys are great for alliteration. Notice how many of their local programs have a combination of words beginning with the same letter.

Now it's Noontime Novelties with the three F's—Frank Antrim, Ford Miller and Ralph Federer.

Frank Mulloy, publicity, bills them as "Fun, Frivolity and Foolishness."

Dick Ridgely's xylophone is nine feet long—one of the largest—and set him back $350.

Fred Rodgers' penchant for wearing a rose in the coat lapel is exceeded only by Lou Kaufman's hobby of collecting post-card pictures.

* * *

By the way, Walter Myers is at it again. Now he's champion of something or other up at Greensburg, where he tied the 18 holes five above par and batted out a drive of 256 yards.

TODAY'S TID BIT

Motor cost is cut tremendously by effective operation of a modern braking station, as it is by the raising of cars and pedestrians. A dry and adequate signals and thus decreases a station's efficiency.

PURE BLOOD—HEALTH

Your blood is an absolutely accurate barometer of your health. Practically no disease can exist without showing definite evidence of its existence in your blood stream. It is, therefore, imperative that you carefully check your physical condition through tests by competent physicians at frequent intervals. A basic principle of healing by direct attack on disease germs through the blood stream has been discovered.

A principle that takes nature into partnership, gives her the elements she needs to work with and enable her to carry to the broken down tissues of an ailing body just the elements she needs in order to restore health.

People all over Pittsburgh and vicinity are telling their own story of how they were rescued from Anemia, High Blood Pressure, Faulty Metabolism, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, Hardening of the Arteries, Neuritis, and the supposedly incurable diseases. All of which sounds like magic, yet these astonishing benefits have been clearly demonstrated.

The curative force and power lies within the body, and you can be made well and free from pain and disease if your Blood Cells are normal and clean.

We are successfully treating High Blood Pressure, Rheumatism, Asthma, Diabetes, Anemia, Neuritis, Nervous or Stomach Troubles, Debility, Kidney Trouble, Heart Trouble, Blood and Skin Diseases, and other ailments affecting the blood stream.

BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUMS

are successfully used in treating these diseases. No discomfort and no pain. Over a million have been given. Watch carefully the heart, lungs, the kidneys and the digestion.

Watch Your Blood Pressure

Why Drug the Stomach when your Blood Cells control High Blood Pressure and most of all chronic diseases? Seek first a careful, scientific examination (which costs you nothing) followed by the specially chosen Serum suitable to your case.

Our Physicians and Laboratory are always at your disposal. Our patients are satisfied. Come and have an examination. No Doctor Charges. Patients pay only for the serum given.

G. A. R. MEETING IN NEW CASTLE DRAWS 1,000

Memorial Tablet to Civil War Veterans Presented To City by Daughters

NEW CASTLE, Pa., June 10. Encampment of the Pennsylvania department of the Grand Army of the Republic and affiliated organizations got under way here with approximately 1,000 delegates, including more than a hundred veterans of the Civil War in attendance.

The delegate list is expected to reach 1,600 by tomorrow, the last day of the encampment. More than 200 veterans of the Civil War are expected from all parts of the state.

MEMORIAL PRESENTED

The Daughters of Union Veterans of the state presented to the city a memorial tablet to honor the heroes of the Union soldiers. The tablet bears Lincoln's Gettysburg address set in marble. Hundreds of visitors and residents of the city witnessed the presentation by Margaret Boas, department chaplain. Commander Philip Engelsinger of the G. A. R. expressed the appreciation of the organization for the memorial and Mayor William H. Gillespie accepted it for the city.

A reception held last night for the State of Union Veterans by the auxiliary of the organization was attended by hundreds.

WEST VIRGINIA MEETING

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., June 10.—The forty-eighth annual state reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic was to open here today to last for three days. The state encampment of the Ladies of the G. A. R., the Women's Relief Corps and the Daughters of Union Veterans will be held jointly.

Reports that the reunion would be the last were denied by J. T. McCombs, department commander, who said:

"The state meetings will be continued until the last veteran has passed away and we do not believe that day will come for a few years yet."

Memorial services will be held tonight at the First Methodist Episcopal Church and Mayor J. D. H. Sullivan has turned over the keys of the city to the veterans.

Detour Continues On Donora Road

CHARLEROI, Pa., June 10.—A detour on the Donora-Charleroi highway will continue for approximately six weeks, it was announced. During the time the road is closed, all traffic between the two cities must use the Webster-Monessen route. Pittsburgh Motor buses are transferring on the short route, while the interburban buses are using the detour.

When you need money see one of the licensed legitimate loan companies advertised in the Classified Section.

NOTED ARTIST DIES AT 82

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP)—Thure De Thulstrup, 82, one of the best known illustrators of the nineteenth century, died at St. Luke's Hospital.

He won a large following by his pictures in Harper's Weekly of such events as the funeral of President Grant and Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee.

For a number of years he was one of the picture painters of artists of the New York Photo Graphic. Later he joined Frank Leslie's Illustrated Weekly and in 1890 went to Harper's Weekly.

He was knighted by King Oscar of Sweden, but never used the title. In 1921 he refused to the Home for Old Men and Aged Couples requesting that his identity be kept secret. It was disclosed when he entered the latter to be used by the home in a campaign for funds.

OLD DOCTOR'S IDEA IS BIG HELP TO ELDERLY PEOPLE

In 1885 old Dr. Caldwell made a discovery for which elderly people the world over praise him today!

Years of practice convinced him that many people were endangering their health by a careless choice of laxatives. So he began a search for a harmless prescription which would be thoroughly effective, yet would neither gripe nor form any habit. At last he found it.

Over and over he wrote it when he found people bilious, headachy, out of sorts, weak or feverish with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy. It relieved the most obstinate cases, and yet was gentle with women, children and elderly people.

Today the same famous effective prescription, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is the world's most popular laxative. It may be obtained from any druggist.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

Cherish those Lovely Arms

When tempted to over-indulge

"Reach for a Lucky instead"

Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Avoid that future shadow* by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain that modern, ever-youthful figure. "Reach for a Lucky instead."

Lucky Strike, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Lucky Strike has an extra, secret heating process. Every one knows that heat purifies and so 20,679 physicians say that Luckies are less irritating to your throat.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*"There is only one remedy for fat, and that is eat the right food . . . There are at least one hundred so-called obesity cures. None of these is permanent. All of these are injurious," says Vance Thompson in his famous little book, "Eat and Grow Thin," published by E. P. Dutton & Company. We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky instead," you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight, and by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

CHARLEROI, Pa., June 10.—Members of the Rostraver Grange, a Sunday school class, and influential citizens will provide an array of legal talent to prosecute Chief of Police John Perri, of Belle Vernon, on charges of assault and battery, disorderly conduct and assault with intent to kill.

Action is the result of charges preferred by Charles W. Smith, Rostraver Township garage owner, against the police executive. Smith alleges that he was attacked by Perri when he appeared for a hearing in police court in answer to a summons for violation of a parking order.

Burgess Lange, of Belle Vernon, announced that he would stand by his police chief in fighting the charges. It was also intimated by Chief Perri and Burgess Lange that counter charges would be made.

N.Y. Mother Finds A Real Weight Builder at Last

If you are tired of being bony, scrawny and weak, read how Mrs. Henry A. Thaler, of Richmond Hill, N. Y., and her daughter, gained weight and improved their figures!

"The writer of this letter and my daughter, Viola, have been using McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets for seven weeks, and in that time I have gained 4 pounds and am more full of 'pep' than ever. Viola has gained 3 pounds and she is beginning to get wonderful color in her face."

The reason is that McCoy's are genuine cod liver oil extract tablets. That is the same as saying that like the Norwegian cod liver oil from which they are made, McCoy's are hundreds of times richer in fresh and strength-producing vitamins than even milk, eggs, butter or cream.

So take advantage of druggists' offer of the safe, pleasant, easy, inexpensive way to gain the weight and energy you need. McCoy's must give any man, woman or child the increased weight desired or money refunded. Just ask for McCoy's—60 tablets 60 cents.

EX-POLICEMAN HELD IN ROW

James "Troubles" McInerney, former police lieutenant, 3354 Delaware avenue, was arraigned in Central Police Court today charged with disorderly conduct.

Patrolman Anthony Piergalski testified that he was called into a drug store at Sixth street and Penn avenue Sunday on complaint of Ralph Sickman, pharmacist, that McInerney was disorderly in the store.

The patrolman said he told McInerney to go home, but that the latter said:

"I don't want to go home. I want to be arrested."

He was arrested after a scuffle in which the patrolman used his mace.

McInerney testified he went into the store to buy cigarets and became nettled when the salesman wanted him to buy a safety razor and other articles. He denied he was under the influence of liquor.

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg held the case over. McInerney was represented by Former Assistant United States Attorney Ralph H. Smith.

CLIMAX NEARS AT MT. LEBANON

Mt. Lebanon Township's official war is due to reach a climax next Monday night when members of the Civic Club will present a petition at the monthly meeting of the township commissioners demanding that the latter resign.

The action grew out of the discharge of Police Chief Charles C. Baldwin more than a month ago. The commissioners, Clarence Scheck, L. E. Clark, C. W. Clatty, F. H. Vitte and William Menilly, refused to explain why Baldwin was let out, it was charged.

The Mt. Lebanon Civic Club, J. V. Long, president, has made a postcard canvass of every home in the township calling on citizens to demand the resignation of the commissioners.

CHANGE IN HIM IS A MARVEL

World's Tonic Was Great Help to Sick Man.

ANOTHER MAN GETS BACK TO HEALTH

"The way ill health has disappeared under the World's Tonic treatment is a never ceasing marvel to my friends. No one who knew me a year ago would believe I have been so perfectly restored to health," said Mr. J. Tarnosky, who lives at 456 Third Avenue, New Kensington, Pa. "In fact I have never ceased to marvel at it myself. I was a sufferer from severe indigestion. In the morning I forced myself to eat a little, but about 10 o'clock I was so weak I had to get something. Then at lunch my food literally nauseated me, and often my stomach rejected it entirely. Sometimes I could eat in the evenings, but I had to be most careful, and often I could not sleep because of the discomfort in my stomach. You can easily believe I was all rundown, and the question of whether I could go on with my work was becoming most serious. Frankly, I did not know what was going to become of me.

"Just at this time a man I knew told me how World's Tonic had relieved him from annoying attacks of dizziness. Since this was one of the troubles I suffered from I thought I would try it. I owe my recovery to World's Tonic. I felt better after a week's treatment. My bowels became regular, and my kidneys did their work without pain. Before I had taken two bottles my feeling of dizziness and the stuffiness from gas in my stomach and bowels disappeared. A few days more and I found myself with an appetite. I was afraid to eat much, after my former terrible experiences, but I got so hungry that I just had to. Then the marvel occurred. For the food I ate agreed with me! I cannot tell you how happy that made me, for I was on the way to real health. It took only five bottles to make me feel perfectly well. Now I eat heartily, but of course am a little careful. I awake in the morning refreshed and go to my work with interest. I sleep so much better and I have so much more energy that I know my recovery is only a matter of a little more time. Surely I have a right to show my gratitude to World's Tonic by telling everyone what a wonderful help it has been to me."

When hundreds of people, many of them right in this community, tell of such experiences as these, you surely owe it to yourself to use this remedy, which can be had at Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, or of any other first class druggist.

Threw Cards at Her, Wife Says; Asks Divorce

Throwing a deck of cards in a wife's face at a bridge party, striking her and calling her vile names in the presence of others are sufficient grounds for divorce, Judge James B. Drew decided in granting a decree to Ellen Raugh, 5018 Liberty avenue, against Clarence Raugh.

The couple married in November, 1921, and severed their matrimonial relations October last. Raugh was charged with cruel and barbarous treatment.

GIRL RUN DOWN IN M'KEESPORT

Hurrying to school in a driving rain, her vision obscured by an umbrella, Helen Leach, 12, of 917 Mary way, McKeesport, walked in the path of a heavy truck and was probably fatally injured this morning.

She was run down by a truck of the Potter-McCune Company, wholesale grocers, driven by Clifford Creek, at Ninth and Market streets, McKeesport, near Walnut Street School.

At McKeesport Hospital her right foot was amputated above the ankle. Creek was arrested pending an investigation.

CHARGE DENIED BY PORTES GIL

MEXICO CITY, June 10.—(AP.)—Former President Emilio Portes Gil today characterized as absurd charges of Luis Morones, who was secretary of industry, commerce and labor in the Calles cabinet at the time of Gen. Alvaro Obregon's assassination, that he had plotted the death of President Ortiz Rubio. Portes Gil added that Morones, who was forced into exile after Gen. Obregon's death, was merely trying to stir up trouble.

Morones, in a speech, declared that emissaries of Portes Gil agitated Communists in Los Angeles to plot the death of Ortiz Rubio when he planned to visit there.

He charged also that Portes Gil is trying to get control of Congress and the cabinet.

Boy, 15, Given Lift, Robs Doctor of $15

BUTLER, Pa., June 10.—(AP.)—Dr. J. W. Brown gave J. Kosienski, 15, Erie hitch-hiker, an automobile ride and was robbed for his accommodation.

Kosienski, apprehened later by the state highway patrol, admitted, officers said, that he held up Dr. Brown with a revolver and robbed him of $15. He said it was his first offense and that he was "a little nervous."

STREET WORK PROPOSED

More street improvement projects are being considered by Council this week.

One would change the width of South Tenth street, east of Carson street, to conform with the proposed reconstruction of the Tenth Street Bridge. The new roadway would be 40 feet, with eight-foot sidewalks. In connection with that proposal is an ordinance changing the grade of Muriel street to meet new conditions. Property damages are estimated at $251,395.

Other ordinances provide for the grading and paving of Amanda street from Concordia to Mayers, Majestic way from North Graham to Vista, Viola from Orleans to Watsonia boulevard, and Guthrie from South Braddock to Savannah.

Lost Much Sleep on Account of Eczema. Healed by Cuticura.

"My trouble began with an itching of my hand, which got worse day by day. Eczema broke out in a rash and later spread to my other hand and face. I could not do my regular work on account of it. When I put my hands in water they itched and burned, and when I scratched it caused eruptions. I lost much sleep at night on account of it.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and got relief in about three weeks, and the fourth week my trouble was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Irene Svitlak, 217 S. 5th St., Duquesne, Pa.

TRUCK PLUNGES 60 FEET, THREE HURT

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

William Pfarr,
Somewhere in New York.
Dear Bill:

There are those among the news men, some on every paper, who throw up their hands when they see the "disreputable" Charlie Ruggles playing his magnificent role of the drunken reporter in the movies.

We don't say this reporter was drunk, but we do know that he was let out little less than a week ago from one of this town's sheets. He got enough money to leave, and "queried" his last employer's night editor, asking if he would take a story from Gettysburg, Pa. The night editor thought the reporter was still on the staff. He answered "yes." The night editor is glad that Abraham Lincoln was a man of few words because the wire received was word-for-word the famous Gettysburg address.

Carry on, says I to Charlie. You're the symbol of newspapermen's desires, if not their performances.

The young man stood on the platform in the little Western Pennsylvania preparatory school. He was valedictorian—honor student of his, the graduating class.

His address tended to show that military men have been the heroes of the past ages in all nations, but today and tomorrow, they are being and will be supplanted by the Edisons, the Einsteins, the Fords—builders.

A few hours after graduation he got notice of his appointment to West Point.

Sam Bigony, aviator, in the early days was flying towards Philadelphia in a survey plane when his gas went out. Mechanic Sullivan was in the other seat. Sam, short of stature but not of courage, is noted for his dislike of walking. Sullivan told the story to Al Gough.

"The engine stopped. We had to sit down somewhere. There was a field below us. But Sam sighted another that it was just possible to make. I yelled to Sam and pointed down to the near one. He kept on gliding towards the far one. We approached it, very low. Then a fence popped up. I thought we would hit and upset.

"Sam saw the fence. Almost on it, he threw the stick forward quickly, pulled it back as quickly. The plane hopped over for a perfect landing. I cussed him and yelled:

"'Sam, you idiot, why didn't you take that near field to land?'

"'See, Sully, see,' and he pointed up the road. 'The gas station here is 200 yards nearer the field.'"

The mayor of Pittsburgh in 1849—81 years ago — was John Herron. We can prove he's not the same John Herron who is now president of City Council.

Harietta Crosman, that famous actress, is a grand-niece of Stephen C. Foster, Pittsburgh composer, who wrote "My Old Kentucky Home" and many others.

Jesse James, [illegible] newsman at Carnegie Tech, is no relation to the late bandit. He has a brother, Edwin, who heads the European bureau of the New York Times.

The town's best dressed society girl (a society editor says) and one of the prettiest (a substitute columnist adds) will go to Europe for the summer providing she avoids Paris coutouriers (that means, Bill, dressmakers or such).

So long.

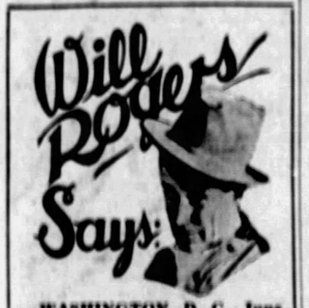
Will Rogers Says:



WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.—Seven hundred legislators here have done what no other 700 men in the would could have done. They have succeeded in making a tariff bill that no one in the 700 thinks is any good, and yet they will pass it.

Let Mr. Ripley put that in his clever "Believe it or Not Column."

Yours,

WILL.

Anne Prefers Business Career to Marriage

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Larry Eaton, president of the Eaton Advertising Agency, is puzzled by the strange actions of his secretary, Janet Andrews, who has been in his employ for five years. When Miss Andrews starts to cry while taking dictation from him, Eaton allows her to go home for the rest of the day. Eaton then decides to get a new secretary. He plans to give Miss Andrews a long leave of absence and get pretty Anne Murdock to work in her place. Miss Murdock is secretary to the vice president of the concern. When Anne hears about the proposed change she is delighted. Anne proves that she can do the new work efficiently. Anne's sister, Kathleen, announces to the family that she has a new job as chorus girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER V.

"You've what?" demanded her father when Kathleen made her startling announcement,

She told him again; gave him chapter and verse,

"You'll do nothing of the sort!"

"But, dad!"

Kathleen looked imploringly at Anne. And there were steps on the porch, the sound of voices—beneficent interruption.

"There's Laura and May!" Kathleen exclaimed and jumped up.

"Go along with you, then," her mother excused her, with something of the girl's relief.

Amused, Anne murmured: "Buck-passer!"—and Mr. Murdock smote upon the table.

"You'll stay here," he ordered, "and get this nonsense settled!" But he spoke to a vanishing slender back.

Anne said quietly: "Let her go, dad. If you oppose her she'll only do something foolish. It's better to have her confidence."

"But the stage!"

Anne looked at him in affectionate despair. "For Pete's sake, don't be such a fossil, angel! There's no harm in it. Lots of nice girls go on the stage every day in the week. Kathleen's been stagestruck since she was 12. Let her have the experience. Maybe it will cure her. She's not cut out for business. And she has to do something!"

Dad Peeved

He Does Not Have Much to Say

"There are other things a darned sight more respectable!"

"Well, as to that, she isn't trained, dad—not for a teacher, or a nurse, or an office, or anything. Don't bully her into being too pig-headed."

Anne's tone and her serene eyes had weight with Murdock. He couldn't give in gracefully but deep in his heart he relied on his elder daughter's judgment.

"All right, then," he grumbled, "I'll say nothing. I don't rate much around this house anyway. You all do as you please. If anything bad comes out of this business you can blame yourself. Yes, and your mother, too, sitting there not saying a word, letting me do it all! I wash my hands of it," said Murdock.

Much later Anne had reason to remember that placing of responsibility.

Murdock rose and went heavily upstairs. They could hear him growling to himself on the way up, and Mrs. Murdock exchanged a look with Anne, while the corners of her mouth twitched.

"He'll be all right now," she diagnosed. "Tell me, Anne, about Miss Andrews."

They talked [illegible] and companionship as they cleared away the dishes. It didn't occur to either of them to complain because Kathleen was not at home to help.

Ted Sulky

Not Glad Because of Anne's New Job

Later, Ted arrived. Anne had not seen him since the evening she had phoned his apartment and broken her engagement with him. Now he came in, stiffened toward sulkiness, and Anne, accurately gauging his temper, suggested:

"It's a nice night; shall I for a ride?"

He nodded and spent some time with Mrs. Murdock, his ally, while Anne was getting ready, inquired for Kathleen, went upstairs to look in at Mr Murdock, who was reading, and by that time Anne had appeared. She'd changed her dress and shoes, pulled a perky little hat over her eyes and flung a new cape about her shoulders.

Presently he escorted her down the steps and into the new car which was his pride.

"I hear," he said, as they pulled away from the house, "that you are working for the chief."

"Yes." She pulled the cape tighter about her, gave a wriggle of excitement. "I—I thought I'd not even be able to hit a key straight. But I got through, thank the Lord."

"I suppose you hope to get the job permanently?" asked Ted, with no sign of premature congratulation in his tone.

"Of course; if I am satisfactory and if Andrews doesn't come back. I'd be crazy if I didn't hope to, Ted!" she said, aroused to defiance by his tone.

"I suppose so." He stepped on the gas and the little car shot away. "But——"

"What, for heaven's sake?"

"Oh, you don't care what I think!"

"Of course I care," she contradicted truthfully, but her heart sank. Was Ted——? Would he ask her—again?

Ted looked around. They had reached a deserted street which debouched into a country road. Ted stopped the car and faced her, eager and appealing.

"I love you so much, dear," he said huskily.

She made a little gesture of unhappiness and hopelessness. This wasn't the first time he'd told her he loved her.

Loves Her

Anne Tries to Treat Ted Fair

She'd known him since she'd entered the agency; they'd gone out together, laughed and danced and played together. And this last summer he'd kissed her more than once—many times more than once. But nowadays, kisses, no matter how much you liked them, didn't mean marriage.

"And you," he was urging—"you do care for me a little?"

"I like you so much," she said honestly.

"But you don't love me?"

"No, Ted," she answered, hating to hurt him.

"You haven't let me kiss you since—since August," he complained.

"Ted, you're so funny. I mean, the way you remember dates. No; I haven't."

"Why?"

"You've just said why. Because you love me and I just like

DELAY SHAKEUP IN SHARPSBURG POLICE FORCE

Council Postpones Action, Then Cuts Tax Rate Two Mills; Fund Approved

Sharpsburg's threatened police shakeup failed to materialize at this week's council meeting. When broached in a motion by Councilman Alfred Pontello, chairman of the finance committee, the whole affair was postponed until next week, the borough fathers agreeing upon a recess until June 16 instead of adjournament.

The borough's tax millage was reduced from 17 mills to 15 in an ordinance which passed first, second and third readings at last night's meeting, and an appropriation bill authorizing expenditures totaling $274,118.66 also received favorable consideration.

Objecting to Councilman Pontello's suggestion that "police matters" be brought up for consideration, Councilman Charles Schrenck, Jr., urged that the entire borough force and burgess be present when such matters were discussed. President Edward S. Michalowsky reminded that only police could be ordered to appear at the hearing and a motion was forthwith presented and passed, "commanding the borough police and requesting the burgess" to attend next week's meeting.

PASTOR WANTS FILMS MOVED

Lay Cornerstone Without Use of Human Hands

Today a cornerstone swung into its place in the new central engineering laboratories building of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company at East Pittsburgh without the aid of human hands.

This was one of the ceremonies in which the $2,000,000 building will be dedicated to engineering accuracy.

Westinghouse officials and engineers assisted in the dedication ceremonies of the world's largest and tallest arc welded steel structure. The completed building will house nearly the entire Westinghouse East Pittsburgh engineering staff and include 25 laboratories.

W. S. Rugg

CRANE DOES WORK

The Westinghouse "electric eye" served in dedicating the new building, for it was the means whereby the cornerstone was lifted from the ground and placed into its niche without tdirec human contact.

By this medium the cornerstone was laid some distance away and several stories above in another building. It had been arranged that a model cornerstone a few inches square was placed into a model niche. This action took place overlooking the scene of the actual cornerstone laying.

This reacted on the "electric eye" mechanism which in turn set a complex arrangement of switches, motors and gears in motion. As the tiny model was operated in the office, a derrick automatically lowered the larger stone into its permanent position in the building.

RUGG TO PRESIDE

W. S. Rugg, vice president of the Westinghouse Company, laid the cornerstone by merely lifting the model stone into its place. Before this operation was begun three copper containers containing significant objects were sealed and placed into hollow compartments in the stone.

Preceding Mr. Rugg's dedication of the stone, A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of directors, and F. A. Merrick, made addresses concerning the new engineering building. Exercises were held indors because of the rain.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: New York club women threaten a crusade on the "double standard" of morals because of the conviction on a morality charge of the widow of Oscar Hammerstein. Should morality law offenders be prosecuted and sentenced without regard to the sex of those guilty?

Mrs. Matheny

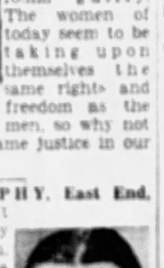
MRS. W. R. MATHENY, East End saleswoman: The double standard of morals has been in effect through the ages. All this discussion and writing will not help or change the issue to any great degree, in my opinion. I also believe that women offenders should be punished the same as men.

Miss Buday

MARGARET BUDAY, McKeesport, saleswoman: If a person is found guilty of some crime he or she should be sentenced according to the crime. A woman should "take her medicine" just as well as a man. This may seem a bit harsh, but it's my opinion.

Miss Hindman

MISS H. HINDMAN, Bellevue, saleswoman: Morality law offenders should be prosecuted and sentenced without regard to the sex of those found guilty. The women of today seem to be taking upon themselves the same rights and freedom as the men, so why not give them the same justice in our courts.



Paul Murphy

PAUL MURPHY, East End, clerk: No, I don't think they should. A woman, as a rule, is a peaceful, law-abiding citizen; while men take more risk and freedom with the law of morals. It is, I think, the men who encourage the women in things frowned upon by society.

Henry Jesteadt

HENRY JESTEADT, West View, salesman: Women are men's equal in intelligence and often above the average man in education, that's why I think they, the women, should be given the same sentences as men for breaking any law. Sentiment should not enter into the question.

R. H. Thompson

R. H. THOMPSON, North Side, manager: Men are just as human as women. If you'll agree to this then I can't see why you shouldn't come to the conclusion that women should receive the same sentences as men when they commit any sort of crime.

SHAFT TO MARK BATTLE SITE

Letters written 167 years ago by Col. Henry Bouquet, while he was under fire in the great Indian battle at Bushy Run, will be reproduced in bronze and used as memorial tablets on a great natural stone monument to mark the site of the decisive victory in Pontiac's war. The monument and the battlefield park, embracing 130 acres in Westmoreland County, will be dedicated August 6, on the anniversary of the conflict.

Bouquet's success at Bushy Run resulted in the relief of the beleaguered garrison at Fort Pitt, and in the eventual expulsion of hostile Indians from this region until after the American Revolution.

Taking up his march on leaving Bushy Run, Col. Bouquet proceeded to Fort Pitt and the following year built the block house at the Point, which today remains the only landmark of the Colonial era existing in Pittsburgh.

Approval of the project for marking the site in the battlefield park was given by the Pennsylvania Historical Commission in a survey of the ground last week. C. M. Bomberger, of Jeannette, secretary of the Bushy Run Battlefield Commission, escorted the visitors over the field. They were William H. Stevenson, president, and Dr. H. H. Shenk, secretary, of the historical commission; William A. Moore, chief surveyor of the Pennsylvania Department of Internal Affairs, and Prof. John Kennedy Lacock, of Boston.

RAY QUITS JOB ON ACCOUNT OF FIGHT

Water Inspector From Fifth Ward Sends Resignation To Kline; Supports Malone

Sidney R. Ray has submitted to Mayor Kline a letter resigning as an inspector in the Water Bureau because of the "display of force on the part of those who represented the administration" last Wednesday at a reorganization of the Fifth Ward Republican Committee in Watt School.

Ray told the Mayor he has been a resident of the Fifth Ward 38 years, and as a member of the Republican executive committee attended the Watt School meeting to take part in the election of a chairman and other officers. Ray declared:

"We have had contests in the past, some of them very hard ones, but we settled them among ourselves without any police being present and without force being used."

REFERS TO FELDMAN

He referred to the incident wherein the followers of City Assessor Harry Feldman took possession of the school building and were reported to have prevented friends of former President of Council James F. Malone from entering the auditorium to take part in the election.

Malone and his friends held an election outside the structure and elected Malone chairman before city police disbursed the committeemen and women so roughly that three citizens were injured.

Feldman's friends claimed he was elected chairman by the committee members in the school building.

Ray, who is a Negro leader in the Fifth Ward, stated:

"I cannot, and will not be a part of an organization that does things that were done last Wednesday. Both sides elected me as secretary, but I do not want, and hereby decline to serve as secretary of the Feldman faction.

"I shall accept the secretaryship to which I was elected on the ticket on which Mr. Malone was named chairman, as I believe the meeting at which Mr. Malone was elected was the only meeting that represented the great majority of the committeemen and women, and surely represented the thought of the people of the ward.

"As I hold a position under your appointment and disagree with your organization in our work, I hereby tender my resignation as inspector in the Bureau of Water to take effect at once.

"I do this in the interest of the people in our ward with whom I have been associated for so many years, and also in the interest of decent government and honest elections."

Girl Ride Seekers Routed by Police

Factory girls "thumbing" their way home from the East Ohio street district were scarce today following the stationing of police along the thoroughfare yesterday after complaints had been made to Director James M. Clark, of the public safety department, that the girls were holding up traffic by asking for lifts.

It was charged that when motorists stopped to permit girls to enter their cars the line of traffic was halted, and that during the quitting hour, the traffic delay was very noticeable.

PITT GRADUATES WEDDED PAIRS

Samuel and Dorothea Wagner, husband and wife, and Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Steining will be among the graduates at the University of Pittsburgh who will receive degrees tomorrow. The Wagners will get their diplomas and bachelors at law degrees. Mr. Steining will get a master of engineering and his wife a master of arts degree.

The Steinings will teach, but the Wagners plan to hang out a shingle.

In the front row, or near by, six little Wagners ranging from 1 to 10 in years will watch the ceremonies with varying interest.

None probably will realize that their daddy will by accepting the diploma leap from one career to another.

Since a boy, Sam Wagner has followed music. He plays in the Stanley Theater Symphony, and during the winter he was heard in the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra. He got his master of arts degree from Pitt some years ago and previously had won a bachelor of arts, which his wife also won at Pitt.

During the past three years they studied law together. The theater furnished them a dressing room, where, away from the gaiety of back-stage, they pored over Blackstone. During examinations the theater gave him the week off.

Mrs. Wagner was Dorothea Mansmann, daughter of an East End merchant.

TEXTILE OUTLET CUTS DOWN SUPPLY

Newlyweds Reported as Excellent Source; 600 Delegates Attend Meet

Favorable forecast for improved business conditions in the fall for the cotton and allied industries was made today before members of the Linen Supply Association of America in opening their convention in the William Penn Hotel.

Newlyweds are one of the sources of new business for the supply men, C. K. Everett, of the Cotton Textile Institute, of New York, declared. He cited the increasing use of rented bedsheeting and other linen matter in the small apartments with limited storage space.

NEW USES FOUND

The elimination of washing and small cost of renting the goods, he said, were apparently sound reason for this business to steadily increase.

In co-operation with the government, new uses were being found for cotton. These were reducing the overproduction which had caused a business decrease.

The convention, which continues through Friday, opened this morning with 600 in attendance. President E. J. Hogan, of Pittsburgh, presided.

He said:

DR. HOWE SPEAKS

"The graduates of today are stepping on the world stage at a time when a great deal of work has been done. There is much more new work to be undertaken; for science is remaking the world.

"Today the best preparation for life comes from an understanding of human values, gained from a study of history and literature, coupled with the objective methods taught by science."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

James McGill Boyer Engaged to Wed Eastern Girl

No matter how diverting the present social season may be, folks are still finding time to look ahead to the coming fall and winter.

In the fall there'll be many autumnal weddings, of course, and many of the engagements that Cupid is responsible for this month will terminate in September and October weddings. And we can all find time to hear about any new plans for the debutantes of next winter.

And with betrothals to talk about, weddings of this very month, and debuts, it's hard to select which of these diverting social events to chat about first.

In addition to weddings, there are entertainments for brides-to-be to brighten these glorious social days of June. Juliet Hillman will entertain with a dinner on Saturday night, June 21, in the home of her father and mother, the J. Hartwell Hillmans, for a bride of June, Clarissa Howe Reed, daughter of the Samuel Clarke Reeds, of Murray Hill avenue, who'll marry Paul Robbins Haviland, son of the Walter W. Havilands, of the Knoll, Landsdowne, Pa., on Tuesday, June 24. Juliet will be one of the bridesmaids at the wedding, I might add.

Yesterday Nancy Brown and her sister-in-law, Mrs. James Brown, entertained for her in their Woodland road home, and on Monday Betty Wells will give a bridge-luncheon in the Fox Chapel Golf Club for Clarissa, I've mentioned before.

The Frank H. Botsfords, of Medina, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Hazel Winifred Botsford, to James McGill Boyer, son of the James C. Boyers, of Howe street. The wedding will take place in the fall, it's planned.

Yesterday afternoon the John Lazears entertained with a tea in their home, and last night Helen Leovy, the bride-elect's sister, and her brother-in-law and older sister, the Clarence Stanleys, gave the rehearsal dinner in the Leovy home. And yesterday there was a luncheon given by Mrs. Paul B. Dickey for the girls of the bridal party and other friends of the guest of honor. This morning Mrs. Alan S. Humphreys and Mrs. Frederick Gwinner, III, gave the wedding breakfast in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, which will be the scene of the reception to follow the wedding ceremony.

Miss Lucile Agnes Hogg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Mathison Hogg, of Maple avenue, is becoming the bride of Arthur Smith Herrington, son of Mrs. Bertha Herrington, this afternoon in the home of her parents. Marries Today

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is wearing a princess gown of ivory satin with long close-fitting sleeves and a tulle veil arranged in cap effect with a band of rose pointe and clusters of orange blossoms holding it in place. Her bouquet is of white roses, lilies of the valley and sweetheart roses. BRIGHT OUTLOOK SEEN FOR NEW FUR TRIMMED SUITS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JUNE 10.—Brighter if not better suits are predicted for next season for nearly every collection, it is believed, will include suits of rich colorings heavily trimmed with light furs, such as gray or beige fox. It was thought that elaborate, fur trimmed suits would repeat their success of last season.

AT THIS TIME of writing it is far more pleasant to describe bathing suits and ensembles and so create the illusion of surf-capped waves beating against a golden strand. Judging from the tremendous number of original bathing ensembles we have already seen in our visits to various designers, there should be little fear of duplication on the beach, in the way of bathing attire, except that, of course, every costume from hat to shoes will be an ensemble affair. Typical of the mode is the Mary Nowitzky model sketched for this page. It consists of a white wool jersey suit over which is worn short red flannel trousers ending well above the knee and trimmed with white flannel piping. A knee-length coat combines red and white flannel and these same two fabrics make the beret and large bag which is rubberized inside. The shoes are of red and white linen.

THE SUIT HAS just been added to Mirande's mid-season collection. It is of heavy toile de laine in a soft rust shade, with the wide, flaring collar bordered with beige fox. The lower half of the sleeves are finely tucked and bloused midway between wrist and elbow. The belt, too, is trimmed with fine tucking. A white crepe de Chine blouse with narrow tucks at the front and short sleeves completes this colorful ensemble.

NO TROUBLE AT ALL NOW

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Has Benefited This Woman

Millions today are eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation.

The cause of constipation is the lack of roughage in food. Add sufficient roughage and constipation disappears. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is nearly all roughage.

Here is a letter from Mrs. H. Gilbert, 107 E. Knight Ave., Collingswood, N. J., which will be interesting to many sufferers:

"I had a very serious operation in October and when I came from the hospital my main trouble was constipation. One day I said to the doctor, 'I am going to eat ALL-BRAN,' and since I started I have no trouble whatever. So you see I can't praise it enough and am always telling my friends what it did for me."

You will enjoy the nut-like flavor of this delicious, ready-to-eat cereal. It is rich in iron, and when eaten with milk or fruit juices, adds important vitamins to the diet.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is an essential in any reducing diet. It means every-day health to people all over the world. Your grocer has it in the red-and-green package. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

REVIEW OF INGRAM CLUB YEAR GIVEN

History of Activities Traced at Season's Closing Meeting

Another year has been written into history by the Ingram Woman's Club, which held its final meeting yesterday afternoon in Association Hall. A history of the year's work, as given by Mrs. L. E. Aber, was an interesting feature of the meeting. In it were mentioned all the activities of the year, including the formation of an evening department, which is now known as the Junior Woman's Club of Ingram, and is not to be confused with the Junior section composed of young girls.

Much of the work done by the Ingram women is philanthropic and civic and among the contributions made last year were those to National Better Magazines Council, Boy Scouts, Welfare Fund (the women collected $769.75 for this), Children's Hospital, two scholarship funds, New Future Home and, in addition to this, the educational committee gave $25 for the purchase of books for the school library and the committee on work for the blind made 55 pounds of carpet rags, conducted a sale of articles made by the blind, contributed to the blind scholarship fund and added to the club's savings fund.

Besides Mrs. Aber's interesting history, the program included contralto solos by Mrs. L. W. Ohl, accompanied by Mrs. P. C. McBeth, and the district prize winning essay on "The Right Use of Leisure" read by its author, Mrs. J. R. Barclay, from the neighboring Crafton Woman's Club.

A tea hour completed the afternoon.

Eight-minute reports from the various superintendents are featuring the quarterly meeting of the Allegheny County Women's Christian Temperance Union this morning in the First United Presbyterian Church of Crafton. Mrs. A. W. Harrison is in charge of the customary quiet hour. Luncheon, served by the Crafton Union, is followed by a song service, a parliamentary drill in charge of Mrs. R. B. Robinson, solos by Mrs. C. L. Rebenack, further reports and an exercise conducted by Mrs. L. S. Hockenberry, of the Squirrel Hill Union. Tonight a playlet, "Uncle Sam's Flower Garden," will be given.

DOROTHY DIX says:

"If I could, I'd give Every Girl in America a box of Lux!"

"Let me tell you Girls of PITTSBURGH just why I say this"

FEMININE DAINTINESS! It is a girl's chief charm. Nothing so attracts people, MEN especially, as dainty femininity. Womanly daintiness stirs the emotions more than anything else.

Sometimes girls are a little careless—a blouse is just a bit soiled at the cuff. Even more do some girls neglect the things that DON'T SHOW — a slip or a step-in is allowed to get shabby looking.

My dears, I have known a soiled, faded looking shoulder ribbon peeping out to shatter a man's IDEAL more quickly and completely than a nagging tongue or a display of temper.

Moreover, when your lingerie isn't dainty and colorful, you yourself don't FEEL exquisite and truly charming. And, in order to charm others, you must feel sure of your own feminine appeal. Self-confidence is contagious.

For your own sakes, I would like to urge every one of you to follow two simple rules—

1. Buy the daintiest, prettiest lingerie you can.

2. Keep it color-fresh and exquisite in every way as long as you wear it.

I'm sure girls often hesitate to wash underthings—stockings, too—as often as daintiness requires, lest they become faded and wear out too soon.

You may rightly fear this, if you've been using just ordinary "good" soap.

But if you'll keep a box of Lux on your bathroom shelf and just dip your lingerie and hosiery up and down in a bowlful of suds as often as needed, you will find they stay colorful and lovely—soft and shimmering and beautiful—for an amazingly long time.

"Dainty, colorful lingerie makes you feel charming — faded, drab underthings cannot give you the same consciousness of utter feminine charm. Therefore — never be careless even about the things that don't show."

Lux is especially made to keep delicate colors UNFADED, FRESH, and to preserve the beauty of fine textures.

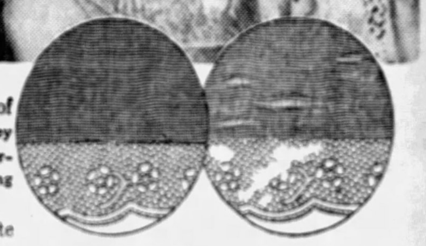
I feel so strongly about this that if I could, I'D GIVE EVERY GIRL IN AMERICA A BOX OF LUX.

In Your Home, Too

Not only can dainty, colorful lingerie give you confidence of charm—but your very SURROUNDINGS can help!

Pretty curtains, slip covers, cushions, colorful table linens, all form part of the magic spell when they are kept ever lovely with Lux.

DOROTHY DIX



Perfect!

Lingerie washed 15 times in Lux—silk and lace fibres intact, color intact, charming as new!

Disappointing!

Lingerie washed 15 times with ordinary "good" soap—silk and lace damaged, color faded.

'ALL QUIET' IN PITT BEGINS SECOND WEEK

"All Quiet On the Western Front" film adaptation of Erich Maria Remarque's "best seller" book, detailing experiences of a group of soldiers in the war, began the second week of its run in the Pitt last night. The fidelity of the picturization to the theme, atmosphere and action of Remarque's work is indicated in sheerest of effective realism.

The principal roles, those of Kat, played by Louis Wolheim, and Paul, played by Lewis Ayres, are the only incongruity chargeable against the movie director, that being of more prominence in the film than in the book, overshadowing Paul, the central character. Both Wolheim and Ayres do wonderful work.

It is a mighty and tragic photoplay.

Mr. Haines Rolls Cigaret After Practicing How For Twenty Days

HOLLYWOOD, June 10.

William Haines, to play a cowboy, had to roll a cigaret with one hand in "Way Out West." He says it took him 20 days, 100 sacks of tobacco and two books of cigaret papers to learn the trick.

Director Sam Wood is busy looking for sweethearts for Jack Gilbert to have in every port in "Way For a Sailor." In the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talkie, Jack will have lady friends in Swansea, Lisbon, Shanghai, Liverpool, Salonliki and way stations. Wood is to direct from the Albert Richard Wetjen novel.

STYLES ONE YEAR HENCE

Many weeks of effort on the part of close to a hundred expert designers, seamstresses, fitters, cutters and the like at the Fox studios, became a part of the screen story of "On Your Back," based on a magazine story by Rita Weiman and directed by Guthrie McClintic, when the former successful director of the Theater Guild staged his Parade of the Mannekins, a gorgeous display of living models of what will be the mode a year hence. This particular scene also will be filmed in color.

Irene Rich

The central figure in the screen play is a fashionable New York modiste, a replica of an actual personality widely known and portrayed by Irene Rich, who sacrifices everything for a career and wealth solely for her son and then finds that the girl he loves is enmeshed in the spider's web that she herself has woven. Marion Shilling is the girl and Raymond Hackett of "Madame X" the boy.

SOME COMMUTER!

Many actors in their time have commuted between New York and London, playing engagements in both cities, the same season. Perhaps the champion of all such acress-the-Atlantic commuters was Lionel Belmore. The past tense is used merely because Lionel Belmore has stopped commuting and settled down in California, where all good actors now go before they die.

Mr. Belmore is a talking picture actor and needs to travel no more, not even on week stands or the dread one-night route over the kerosene circuits. He has just completed the role of Col. Villiers in Warner Brothers' new technicolor talking and singing picture, "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," from David Belasco's play taken from the Agnes and Egerton Castle novel of that title.

LESS CLANNISH

"I have commuted across the Atlantic between London and New York 40 times in my pursuit of theatrical engagements," says Mr. Belmore, "and might still be doing it if Warner Brothers had not brought talking pictures to the screen. At least I would be experiencing the discomforts of living in my trunk and jumping from town to town.

"Talking pictures have made life more comfortable, as well as more remunerative, for the actor whose voice and face 'registers' successfully on the screen. It is giving us harder work, perhaps, but more regular hours, more social life, the opportunity to become citizens of a community and to identify ourselves with its development. It has helped us to become more human by bringing us into closer touch with our fellow citizens. We are not so clannish as we were before pictures brought us into a more settled life."

RICHER and CREAMIER

When this mother's arms were numb then this mayonnaise was done

Eggs fresh from the barn. . . . Spices, hot and tangy, from the far East. . . . Vinegar, of course. . . . Then drop by drop the rich oil.

Drop . . . beat . . . drop . . . beat. Beat faster and faster, harder and harder 'til the whole mixture smiled up from the bowl—a glowing, golden yellow—'til the mother's arms were numb—then the mayonnaise was done!

Naturally the fame of this wonderful home-made mayonnaise spread. . . . Other women wanted it and asked this mother for it. Finally this richer, creamier mayonnaise—following the original home recipe and with the same fine ingredients—was put up in jars and christened "Ivanhoe."

Sold fresh by good grocers anywhere. In quarts, pints, half-pints, and 3¼ oz. jars. Ivanhoe costs no more than ordinary mayonnaise.

CHINA WAR LORD FINALLY FOUND

SHANGHAI, June 10.—(AP.)—Marshal Wu Pei-Fu, China's famous scholar and war lord who long since dropped out of public view, has finally been located.

The Chinese post office found him living in seclusion far in the hinterland of Szechuen Province, 1,000 miles from here and almost completely out of touch with the rest of the world.

When Marshal Wu and his armies were defeated three years ago by the Nationalist forces, the war lord went into retirement, isolating himself completely from China's political affairs.

Recently a local magazine sent the Marshal a subscription blank together with a copy of the magazine. They were addressed to Peiping and several weeks later a reply was received with the subscription blank filled out. The post office had succeeded in doing what a lot of influential people would like to boast they could do. It had traced the war lord far into the interior and hundreds of miles from Peiping.

Pen Signing Dope Bill Souvenir For Porter

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(Universal.)—The pen which President Hoover uses in signing the Porter narcotics bureau bill will be presented to Representative Porter (Rep.), of Pittsburgh, it was announced at the White House.

Representative Porter is ill in a Pittsburgh hospital.

Upon reaching the White House today, the bill, sponsored by the Hearst newspapers, was referred to the Treasury Department for a report. Secretary of Treasury Mellon already has hailed it as a forward step in the fight against dope.

Mears' Plane Goes Back to Factory

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 10.—(AP.)—John Henry Mears and Fred Melchior, who plan to fly around the world in their plane "The City of New York," announced they were taking the plane back to Detroit for adjustments, because, they said, it is not developing the speed they expected.

The start of the flight has been postponed at least three weeks.

DELAY NAMING COLLEGE HEAD

MEADVILLE, Pa., June 10.—(AP.)—The board of trustees of Allegheny College accepted the resignation of Arthur W. Thompson, Philadelphia, as chairman, and elected A. A. Culbertson, Erie, to take his place.

Election of a new president of Allegheny was not carried out, as had been expected. He will be named some time during the summer, it was announced. Dr. J. A. Beebe resigned as president several months ago because of ill health.

The board decided to abolish the athletic association and place control of athletics in the faculty. Intra-mural sports were approved.

The alumni secretary, Frank La.ounty, submitted his resignation, which was accepted.

Gov. John S. Fisher and Charles M. Schwab were to be present today at the one hundred and fifteenth annual commencement, with Schwab as the speaker. The class numbers 105.

OFFER FOR HARGREAVES DENIED HERE

WITH THE APPROACH of the time limit on the swapping of ball players in the major leagues, midnight next Monday being the deadline, the baseball market is beginning to buzz with rumors of proposed trades. Several clubs are reported to be on the trail of certain athletes belonging to other teams, and to be hopeful of making deals for them before the trading season closes. But in all probability, very few, if any of these proposed dickers will get any farther than the rumor stage.

Charley Hargreaves

The situation is much like that which exists before the magnates get together for their big business confabs each winter. The air is full of trade talk, but when the showdown comes little or nothing develops. Clubs that are seeking certain players find in the end that the price is too high, or they are trying to get useful athletes without giving up any worth-while material in exchange. Others broadcasting from the housetops that they are angling for this or that athlete or talking only for publicity purposes and have no intention of making any serious offers that might be accepted.

THE BOSTON NATIONALS appear to be in the latter class. Somebody connected with the Braves is said to have announced yesterday an effort was being made to get Catcher Charley Hargreaves from the Pirates. However, President Barney Dreyfuss says that no overtures of any kind have been made to him. Moreover, he had a talk with Manager Jewel Ens by long-distance phone, and the fact that Ens made no mention of such a deal indicates that the subject never was broached to him, either.

It is not at all improbable that the Pittsburgh club would be found willing to part with two or three players now on the roster, and possibly Hargreaves might be one of them, but if a deal is to develop in any direction it has yet to be even suggested. And that's only one of the trade rumors flying around that probably will prove in the end to have been only hot air. The clubs that really do any trading rarely tell about it in advance.

WHEN PAAVO NURMI returned to Finland after his latest campaign on American tracks, they said he had finally burned himself out as a middle-distance runner. His record-breaking days were over, the experts decided.

The answer of the Flying Finn was to come back yesterday at Stamford Bridge in England and smash the world six-mile mark that had stood for 26 years. Alf Shrubb in 1904 set that record at 29 minutes, 59 2-5 seconds. Nurmi yesterday slashed it to 29:36 3-5.

Paavo Nurmi

THOUGH NOW IN his middle 30's and perhaps lacking some of the shorter distance speed that enabled him to run a mile in 4:10 2-5 in 1923, Nurmi evidently is even better than ever at the longer distances and far from being done. Only recently he was recognized by the International Amateur Athletic Federation as the holder of the record for the 10-mile run, displacing Shrubb, and now another of Shrubb's famous five world records has fallen before the remarkable Finn. In seven years, Nurmi has set world records for 1, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 10 miles; for 3,000, 5,000, 10,000 and 15,000 meters, and for distance covered in one-half hour, and one hour of running. That's a total of 12 world records. And he's still going. Shrubb's records for 7, 8 and 9 miles may be the next to fall.

A CLUB THAT has just lost two out of three to the lowly Braves and has won only four of its last 13 games would not appear to threaten much opposition to the fast-stepping Giants, who have captured eight games in succession. But you never can tell about the Pirates.

It would be right in line with the inconsistency they have been showing since the season opened if the Bucs were to turn around and smash the McGrawites' streak. The four-game series opening today in New York is the toughest part of the Eastern trip, but don't be surprised if the Rovers make a better showing there than they did in Brooklyn or Boston.

STEVE SWETONIC, Pirate pitcher, operated on last month for the removal of his appendix, has been discharged from St. John's Hospital and is resting up at his home on the North Side.

Steve is under orders to avoid any strain, and will not be permitted even to walk upstairs for several days, but he expects to be able to venture as far as Forbes Field next week to greet his teammates when they return from the East.

Cy Perkins

WASHINGTON IS NOT the club that the A's figure they will have to beat to win the pennant. Catcher Cy Perkins expresses the views of the majority of the Mackmen when he says: "The Yankees are the team that we'll have to beat. I can't see Washington. It's a good ball club, but it doesn't look like a pennant winner to me. Take the first series with the Western clubs. We won 11 games and lost 2. Washington won seven and lost six. No pennant baseball there. It's the same on the present Western trip. It's in the West, too, that the pennant must be won. The Yankees have power. All that they need is to have a couple of those young pitchers come through, and they'll be just as dangerous as ever. I haven't changed my mind a bit about them. We'll have to beat them if we're going to repeat."

CHARLEY WOOD, who, like Andy Bednar, is pitching under a Pirate option for Wichita in the Western League, continues to show the form that has made him one of the sensations of that circuit since the start of the season.

Following a game in which he struck out 16 St. Joseph batsmen, Wood turned in another flossy number the other day by holding Des Moines to one hit. And his mates claimed in a vigorous protest to the umpire that before that hit was made Wood had the batter struck out. In Wood and Bednar the Bucs have two of the best hurling prospects of the year in the minors.

By JACK SHARKEY.
American Heavyweight Champion.

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., June 10.—It will be a well-conditioned, happy Jack Sharkey who will wind up his training here today. I have been in training for six weeks and have reached the peak of physical fitness.

Jack Sharkey

The program for my final day of training calls for two rounds of boxing with Johnny Grosso, two more sessions of boxing with King Solomon, two frames of bag punching and some shadow boxing.

I have gradually approached the best condition of my ring career. In the past I have often reached the peak of my form a week to 10 days before a bout. I have often taken off too much weight and it has been necessary for me to build myself back to my best fighting form.

HEAT COST WEIGHT

When I boxed Young Stribling at Miami, Fla., I scaled 186½ pounds a week before the bout. It was necessary for me to pack back 10 pounds in order for me to enter the ring at my best weight.

The intense heat of Florida always caused the flesh to melt off my body and I could not take as much exercise as I wished to.

It has been different training here. Climatic conditions are perfect. I have followed a careful program and kept my weight up above 200 pounds until Sunday when I scaled 199 pounds. I expect to be at 198 pounds when I leave camp. With the drying out process still ahead, I shall be at 196 to 197 pounds when I weigh in for my test with the German champion.

I am glad to read where a large number of the boxing experts believe Schmeling is going to win. As a result, I shall get the proper amount of credit when I prove that America still rules the ring.

RESPECTS MAXIE

I am not underrating Schmeling. I consider him the greatest foreign fighter to come to this country in years. He would have been able to defeat Georges Carpentier and Louis Firpo at their best.

The German has youth, endurance, a mighty punch and a fair knowledge of boxing.

I have had more ring experience than Max, am a better boxer and can hit as hard. On numerous occasions I have proved that I have ample endurance.

I look for a sensational fight Thursday night. Max and myself each are anxious to win by a knockout. With the easy punches flying, the fans are certain to get plenty of action for their money.

This is the biggest bout of my career. In addition to the fact the contest is for the heavyweight championship of the world, I am the standard bearer of America in a ring contest with the best of the foreign champions. You may be sure I shall give everything I have in the fighting line and that I shall win.

Believe It Or Not By RIPLEY

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Robert L. Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY—ICEBERGS ARE HOT—NOT COLD—Due to the heat on the surface of the iceberg, it is uncomfortably hot on the bergs in the daytime. The natural color of an iceberg is almost black. The deceptive white color is the hue of the air of the interstices. This air has been pressed into the ice by the weight of gradually accumulating snowflakes in Greenland ages ago. The ice is of absolute purity and has less solid content than distilled water. Freezing tends to purify even sea water. Every iceberg acts as a hydraulic pump, drawing to itself the warm surface waters, hence the iceberg becomes the center of a hotter water surface. My authority is Prof. Howard T. Barnes, of McGill University of Montreal, probably the foremost authority on the subject. THE EARL OF SANDWICH INVENTED THE SANDWICH—Our sandwich derived its name from the Fourth Earl of Sandwich (1718-1792) who is said to have been so addicted to gambling that he would not take out time for regular meals, but was satisfied to do with a hasty arrangement of bread and meat, which immortalized his name.

TOMORROW—SUCH A LITTLE TREE, TOO!

TWO TOURNEYS CARDED TODAY

Two one-day tournaments fill today's golfing books. One of them is being played at the Edgewood Country Club, where the Philadelphia Company has set up Mike Galido as the favorite to cop the honors, and the other is at the beautiful Wildwood Country Club, where the Purchasing Agents' Association is staging a big field day.

Tomorrow three big events are at hand. The last half of the 36-hole Grogan Cup match will be played over the Shannopin links, when the home club striving to win the honor now held by Highland; the Nemacolin Country Club invitation tourney, a three-day affair, begins at that club, and Section 2, of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania team league, cavorts the links of the Country Club of Pittsburgh.

Jimmy Devlin, smiling pro at Nemacolin, has announced that due to the late announcement of the tournament, no pairings will be announced. All entries will be made at the tee, and starting times are to be "had" on arrival—and not before.

DEL VECCHIO WINS

Yesterday a trio of tournaments were staged. Perry Del Vecchio Day went over in a big way at the Greensburg Country Club, starting with the first event when the home club pro-groundkeeper, in whose honor the event was staged, came through to shoot two below par for a 69 to win first money. In the afternoon, amateur members of the Greensburg Country Club teamed up with the visiting professionals, and Fred Baroni, Stanton Heights, and R. S. Jamison coped the bacon with a best ball of 33-32—65. Golf throughout the day was followed by a festive dinner and party in evening. The summary of yesterday's play:

Two tourneys were staged at the Wildwood Country Club, the Hotel, Club and Restaurant Men's

JOHNNIES WIN ON FORFEIT

Johnstown won a 9-0 forfeit victory over Scottdale yesterday in the Mid-Atlantic League when the Scotties left the field in the first inning after an argument with Umpire McCloskey, who ordered Manager Dyer from the field.

At Clarksburg, the Generals defeated Fairmont, 5 to 1. Wheeling won over Charleroi, 4 to 3, at Wheeling. The Cumberland-Jeannette game was played as part of a double bill Sunday.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Well, folks, here we are back in New York, where a lot of wise guys bump into you without excusing themselves, but you get quite a lot of that around Pittsburgh, too. So this keeps a fella in shape.

We dropped a couple of games up in Boston, but I didn't drop any of my "r's." I can still say Harvard without makin' it sound like something else. But at that, you gotta hand it to those Boston people when it comes to culture. I guess Al Jolson would be a flop up there.

DUMB ONE

I guess a lot of ball players don't know how to take Boston, but about all some of them think about is baseballs, free taxi rides and "when do we eat." Pie Traynor was tellin' about a player that was so dumb he thought July the Fourth was a European king, like George the Third.

Well, I don't think there's any on our club that bad, but there's quite a few on the team who think there's only a sporting section in a newspaper.

George Grantham was reading the Literary Digest nearly all the way down from Boston and I guess some of the boys thought he was payin' a bet or something.

FAVOR SHARKEY

There's more talk about the fight over here now than there is about the ball games. Most of our gang think Sharkey is gonna take the German, but Gus Suhr, Heinie Meine and one or two others who like their sauerkraut will lay something on the line for Max.

They tell me when Georges Carpentier met Jack Dempsey, Jacques Fournier was the only one on the Brooklyn club to pick George to win, but maybe Jacques didn't say it with cash.

Hafey Quits Cards for Eye Treatment

BOSTON, June 10.—(AP.)—Manager Dabby Street, of the Cardinals, already confronted with a variety of troubles, today had another problem to solve through loss of Charles (Chick) Hafey, outfielder.

Hafey, whose weak eyes have been handicapping him this season, has been forced to leave the team and will return to St. Louis for treatment.

With Frankie Frisch, Charley Gelbert and Ernie Orsatti out because of injuries, Street has been depending on Hafey to supply a large part of the team's punch. George Watkins will probably replace him.

PROBE GIVES ARMY O. K.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP.)—The conduct of athletics at West Point was given a clean bill of health yesterday by Secretary Hurley on the basis of a preliminary report by Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, inspector general of the army, but his denial of charges against the academy drew a challenge and demand for an apology from Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York.

The war secretary made known he was entirely satisfied with the conditions reported and denied as untrue charges he said were attributed to Fish in recent news reports that subsidies had been granted athletes; that stars were permitted to leave the service when their playing was finished and that scouting for players was being indulged in.

Fish in turn denied he had stated West Point football players were being subsidized and added:

OPENING GAME WITH GIANTS CALLED OFF

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The first game of the Pirate-Giant series, scheduled for this afternoon, was postponed about noon on account of rain. In making the announcement of the cancellation, the New York officials stated that the game would be played at the Polo Grounds as a part of a double-header on Sunday, July 27.

Steady showers during last night and this morning brought about the postponement. The rains of this morning alone were sufficient to bring about a cancellation of the sport, and at noon there was nothing to indicate the skies would clear.

The Pirates were not much disappointed over the calling off of the game.

REST FOR CRIPPLES

Manager Ens' crippled club will not suffer because of rest, while Manager McGraw, with his best lineup in action, had his club whipped up to a lather of victories. The Giants have won eight games in a row and appear anxious to take on all comers.

It was the second day of enforced idleness for the Giants as well as for the Pirates. The Pirates rather welcome the respite but when a club has all its stars in and everybody "clicking," the idleness may have a bad effect.

Three more games are included in the present Pirate card at the Polo Grounds. The series is due to close on Friday after which the Bucos will move on to the Eastern confines of their own state to take on the lowly but dangerous Phillies.

Larry French was slated to twirl this afternoon and the young Coast League southpaw will keep the assignment for tomorrow. It is altogether likely that Ervin Brame will return to the mound in the present set of games. The star right hander has been out of action for about one month with an attack of flu. His illness appears to have hurt the Bucos in no small manner as he was the most consistent pitcher of the club and one of the best in the league. The team not only missed his pitching, it also was hurt by the absence of his big bludgeon.

SWITCHES P. WANER

Ens will switch P. Waner back to the third notch of the batting order just as soon as the weather clears off. The second position role brought a batting slump to Brother Paul.

Ens is somewhat undecided about the short field job. Charley Engle has played bang-up baseball since the team left Pittsburgh, yet the Pirates have lost four of their six games.

This eventuality may indicate to Skipper Ens that Bartell has quite an influence on other members of the team. In any event, Dick may resume play at the Polo Grounds.

Davies, Loughran Bouts Postponed

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., June 10. — The Willie Davies-Jackie Coogan bout scheduled at the new Foutts Brothers' Bowl here tonight was postponed until tomorrow night on account of rain.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—(INS.)—The Tommy Loughran-Ernie Schaaf bout was postponed as is today until tomorrow night. The bout originally was booked for last night, but rain caused it to be put over to tonight, and when the weather showed no signs of clearing up this morning it again was postponed.

LEIPERSVILLE, Pa., June 10.—(INS.)—The Tommy Heeney-Bob Sikes bout booked for the Delaw outdoor arena here tonight, between ex Radio of Washington, and Tiger Thomas, of Laurenville, was postponed until tomorrow evening because of rain.

URGE FISH BILL

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP.)—Dr. C. A. Wagner, of Wilkes-Barre, vice president of the United Sportsmen of Pennsylvania, has urged Representative Fenton to make an especial effort to line up members of the Pennsylvania congressional delegation in support of the Hawes-Stacy bass bill. The measure would prohibit sale of black bass in public markets.

Nick Altrock Says:

CLEVELAND, June 10.—One of the most crucial series the fans have overlooked is the battle of the Phillies and Cincy Reds for last place. It looks to me like the Phillies have the edge as they have more zinc in their ankles and the coasting facilities in Philadelphia are better. Still it is kind of bewildering to look at the National League and see two foreign outfits like Cincinnati and Philadelphia establishing squatters' rights for the bottom while the Braves are still in the league. You know, the Braves were so used to being in the cellar they always got jobs as gas meter inspectors during the winter months.

Wilbur Shaw Cops Detroit Auto Race

DETROIT, June 10.—(AP.)—Wilbur Shaw, of Indianapolis, won the 100-mile championship automobile race at the Michigan State Fair Grounds late yesterday. Shaw's time on the one-mile dirt track was 1:29.543, an average of 69.58 miles per hour.

Russell Snowberger, of Philadelphia, was second, and Bill Cummings, of Indianapolis, third.

Goldstein Loses To Andy Andrucci

NEW CASTLE, Pa., June 10.—Andy Andrucci, of Pittsburgh, was awarded the decision over Phil Goldstein, of Cleveland, at Jolly Bowl last night, after 10 rounds of terrific battling. The battle was not all in favor of Andrucci, but the judges evidently figured that he struck the better blows.

In the six-round semi-final, Bobby Dempsey, of Ambridge, won the decision over Jackie Ward, of Cleveland.

SENATORS' SLUMP CONTINUES; TRIBE GAINS

CHAMPS DOWN SOX; YANKS LAND WIN

Baseball [illegible] with it the spring could [illegible] the ones won in September but the Washington Senators [illegible] that it takes more than an April and May [illegible] to keep in the running in the American League flight.

True, the Senators are still clinging [illegible] to second place in the [illegible] circuit but every day sees [illegible] creeping closer [illegible]. Today Cleveland [illegible] a half game away, while [illegible] setting a burning pace [illegible] the Athletics with a three-game lead.

NATS SLUMPING

On May 28 Walter Johnson had the Senators [illegible] the way to four full games with the world champions [illegible] to maintain the fast clip. Then something happened to the seemingly perfect machine. The hitters failed to hit and the pitchers lacked the magic touch that had the baseball world talking of the Big Train's miracle.

In 10 games since that date the Senators have won only two while Connie Mack, with substitutes playing the role of regulars, has accounted for 10 of his 12 contests. The Indians also shifted into high and won seven of their last 10 games. A glance at the records show the Athletics to be playing .853 baseball since May 28, with the Indians hitting a .700 clip and the Senators only .200.

The Indians stand within grasp of runner-up honors as the result of a 5 to 4 victory over the Senators yesterday. With Eddie Morgan providing the big gun of the offensive power and Walter Miller hurling good ball in the pinches, Cleveland came from behind to nose out their rivals in the eighth inning.

A'S BEAT CHISOX

Taking advantage of the Senators' defeat, the Athletics strengthened their hold on first place by eking out a victory over the White Sox, 3 to 2.

Chad Kimsey turned in a brilliant bit of relief hurling at St. Louis, but holding the Yankees to five hits in six innings failed to stop them from defeating the Browns, 8 to 5. The Yanks scored seven of their runs off Crowder in the first three innings.

In the only other game played in the major leagues the Red Sox nosed out Detroit, 7 to 6, by reason of a five-run rally in the seventh. Milton Gaston held the Tigers to nine hits.

All of the National League games were postponed either because of rain or wet grounds.

PAT BIGGERT LOW

Pat Biggert came in with the low gross for the day in the Hotel Club and Restaurant Men's affair, scoring a 78 for the tough test at Wildwood. Playing in the first division, Biggert was third, however, in the net rating with a 72. Otto Eberle with 86-15—71 and Billy Tavano with 85-14—71 taking honors. Charley Schmidt, noble secretary of the organization, was runner-up to L. Shoemaker in the second flight prize winnings, Shoemaker tallying 95-24—71 and Schmidt 101-28—73. The scores:

Long's Sport Comment

drifted into a discussion of the champions and near champions of the past. He declared that the best of them all is not listed among the former champions.

Corbett, himself a former champ, and whose name is the second of those inscribed on the Muldoon-Tunney Championship Trophy to be awarded to Thursday night's winner, was referring to Peter Jackson. He fought a 61-round draw with Jackson in 1891 and declares that the Negro was the greatest heavyweight of all time.

Jim Corbett

CORBETT ALSO EXPRESSES the opinion that Jim Jeffries was a better man than Jack Dempsey. He believes that if they could have met, with both in their prime, Jeffries would have flattened Dempsey. "Jeffries would beat any man who came to him," Corbett said. "I don't believe any one could have hurt him in his prime, and his great strength eventually would have overwhelmed Dempsey. A fight between John L. Sullivan and Dempsey would have been worth going miles to see. Sullivan was the best right hand puncher the game ever knew, and Dempsey was the hardest left-hand hitter. It would have been a question of which landed first, though I would be inclined to lean toward Sullivan. He could beat any one he could hit, and every man whom Dempsey fought managed to hit Jack at one time or another."

Olympian

RUSSELL F. SEITZINGER

LOCAL SHOOTER ON U. S. TEAM

By JULIUS LEVIN.

For the fourth successive year Pittsburgh will have a representative on America's international rifle team which will compete for the world championship in a meet scheduled in Antwerp, Belgium, August 15, 16 and 17, according to announcement from Quantico, Va., where Russell F. Seitzinger, 25, of 3612 Perrysville avenue, was one of the five civilians to qualify for a position on the team. Seitzinger finished fourth among the contestants for places on the American Olympic rifle squad, shooting 2,710 out of a possible 3,000.

Seitzinger, who completed seven years of service with the United States Marine Corps last February, will be making his fourth trip to Europe, having competed in the matches held in Italy in 1927, in France in 1928 and in Sweden last year.

Although America never has succeeded in lifting the world championship, this year's team, according to Seitzinger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Seitzinger, has an excellent chance of winning the highest honors.

Switzerland, which has won the laurels for the past three years, is the big barrier between the American team and the international championship. Hartman of Switzerland, is regarded as the premier rifle expert in the world, with Seitzinger a close second.

Seitzinger's prowess as a sharpshooter has won him numerous trophies. He ranked as one of the leading contestants in the Grand American Handicap meet held last year at Camp Perry, O.

Having completed his enlistment with the Marines, Seitzinger now is employed by his father, head of a local embossing company.

KDKA to Relay Fight to Germany

Germany will be able to tune in on the Sharkey-Schmeling bout Thursday night in English as well as in German. It was announced today by Station KDKA, of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, the pioneer broadcasting station of the world. The National Broadcasting Company's broadcast from the ringside will be available for the listeners-in on this station and also will be picked up by the international short wave relay band of the station and carried out over the Atlantic to be picked up and rebroadcast by the German stations.

Graham MacNamee will describe the action, while Miss Carmen Ogden, of Rochester, N. Y., will cover the society and fashion aspects and give a woman's view of the general excitement.

Station WGY, in Schenectady, N. Y., will broadcast the fight in German from the ringside over its short wave circuit.

POOR DECISION RILES FANS AT BOWL

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

A decision in the bout which so aroused the ire of the crowd that it set up a clamor that could not be quieted by persistent announcements of the boxing show at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, last night. The main bout that followed was only an anticlimax.

Harry Kid Brown, veteran lightweight of Philadelphia, was the victim of the affronting decision after having outfought and outpunched Johnny Sharkey of Cambridge, all of the way in the 10-round semi-final. Sharkey, although he tried hard, did not win a round, barely managing to hold his own in five of the sessions and losing all of the others. It was a case of Brown simply being too smart for him and giving him a boxing lesson. For all of which, at the finish, Brown didn't get a single vote from the two judges and the referee.

CROWD REBUKES OFFICIALS

The judges, Jack Bianco and Frank Ferris, both voted for Sharkey, while the referee, Jack Henderson, called it a draw. Until this one was pulled out of the bag, the decision for Tom Maloo over Young Saylor in their first bout at the Moose Temple some months ago held first place as a lulu. It lost the championship last night and the rebuke from the crowd was justified.

Farmer Joe Cooper of Terre Haute, Ind., added another victory to his long string here by outboxing and outpunching Joe Trippe of Rochester, N. Y., all of the way in the 10-round windup, despite the handicap of a bad gash on the top of his head caused by a butt in the fifth round. The wound bled copiously from then on to the finish, but it did not appear to hamper the Farmer's fighting. Trippe was far from the energetic youth who fought those two thrillers with Sergt. Sammy Baker at Motor Square Garden during the winter and appeared to be suffering from the effects of the beatings he took at the hard fists of the Sergeant.

BRANNON STOPS YOUNG

Bobby Young, of Duquesne, short and squat, was his usual target self in the first scheduled 10-rounder and took a lacing from Eddie Brannon, Hill Negro, all of the way until he finally succumbed to a knockout punch with 30 seconds to go in the eighth round. He had been floored for a count of nine by a right to the jaw earlier in the frame. Brannon softened him up with body smashes from the start.

Don Davis, a novice, of Youngstown, was substituted on short notice for the advertised Young Angelo, of Swissvale, who denies he ever accepted the bout, and took a pasting from Ken Hargraves, of New Kensington, Negro, in the six-round opener.

HERRERA-ELKINS NEXT

It was announced that Tony Herrera and Eddie Elkins, the latter of New York, will box the main bout next Monday night, taking the place of the Johnny Datto-Jackie Rodgers bout, which has fallen through because of a side injury suffered by Rodgers.

The weights of the boxers on last night's card:

Cooper, 145½ pounds and Trippe 146; Smackey 135½ and Brown 137½; Brannon 137¾ and Young 135¾, and Hargraves 129¾ and Davis 132½.

Tommy Grant and Chappy Couch were the timers. Ray Eberle did the announcing and Dr. Coyle, of Braddock, was the commission physician. The turnout was fair.

Between Rounds

[illegible]

Harry Harris, former middleweight, of Bellaire, O., who has been on the sidelines for six months with a broken hand, is ready to box again now but seeks an off-color bout. His manager, Andy Vorko, would like to turn him loose against one of the big fellows and is gunning for a bout for Harry at the Meyers Bowl. Harry is remembered as a fellow with the prolific and puny of the ring mannerisms of Gene Tunney.

Willie Jarvis knew Carlos Coogan, of Indianapolis, in the days of the old opening show at the Fowler Brothers new boxing tent at East Liverpool. It tonight Freddie Edwards and Johnny Landon are in the semi-final and Kenny Lavis and Harry Morris in the main event. Lavis beat Morris, boxer, Ward Coyne in Chicago and Kenny Rose defends his world welterweight title against Eddie Anderson at Milwaukee.

Teddy Herre, who is associated with Jack Kearns in the management of Al Foy, the Chatroit heavyweight, who leaves the week-end to the Sharkey-Schmeling bout, wires that he and Kearns are interested in making a date for George Panka bout here.

Luke Carney is in receipt of a letter from Soldier Bartfield, former welterweight and middleweight star, who says he is broke and is getting ready for a comeback. He and Soldier are to fight almost here. The Soldier was a tough one to beat when he was up there.

Tommy Freeman and Sergt. Sammy Baker box the windup of the opening show of the Motor Bowl to be staged tonight. Harry Kinsey and Gene Johns are in the main bout, in the same arena June 24. Eddie Mead is the ring matchmaker.

Bobby Richardson and Whitey Laubach have been matched to box the main bout of a boxing show to be held at Altoona on Friday night, the eve of the big automobile race at the speedway there.

M'QUAID RELEASED

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—(AP.)—Mark McQuaid, right-hand pitcher of the San Francisco Missions, was released yesterday. Wade Killefer, manager of the Coast League club, said McQuaid had failed to come up to expectations. He played for the New York Yankees three years ago and was acquired by the Milstone last season from St. Paul of the American Association in a trade.

YACHTS IN TEST

NEW YORK, June 10.—(INS.)—Short cruise by three America Cup defender candidates were in wind or preparations for their first race. The Enterprise, West Coast boat, arrived yesterday to take part in the New York Yacht Club race at Glen Cove tomorrow. The old enemies, Resolute and Vanity will also participate. Only the Yankee will be missing.

WHISKERY WINS

CHICAGO, June 10.—(AP.)—The Morven stable's Whiskery, winner of the Kentucky Derby in 1928 apparently has regained form after long years. At New Kensington, Rambling Eagle paid the handsome price of $14.80 in winning the ninth race over the futurity distance. Eulee was second and Drifting Cloud third.

GOB ON EDGE FOR BATTLE

and chased away the glooms who have been saying he has gone stale. In a brisk workout he battered Johnny Grosso and King Solomon in shameful fashion. He never gave them a moment's rest and jabbed and rocked them repeatedly. They alternated through four rounds of boxing and were glad when the session was over. Paul Cavalier was lucky. He was on the sidelines with an injured arm.

Newly-arrived scribes, who had been led to believe that Sharkey was far off form, marveled at the ease with which he glided and bounded about and battered his mates and seldom was hit in return. They vowed that it was all off with Maxie Thursday night.

Sharkey weighed a little more than 198 pounds at the finish of the sensational workout and expects to enter the ring at about 197. He will remain here until a few hours before weighing-in time Thursday and then proceed by train to New York.

BELANGER BEATS MAXIE

ENDICOTT, N. Y., June 10.—Max Schmeling, engaging in his next to last boxing drill for his bout with Jack Sharkey for the world heavyweight title Thursday night, yesterday took on four sparring partners and was impressive against all but one, Charles Belanger, the Canadian light-heavyweight, who easily outboxed him and made him look a bit sad. Belanger's snappy left bothered Maxie no little.

Lou Barba, Jack Shaw and Frankie Bush were Maxie's other spar mates. Barba clipped the German a few beautiful rights in the mush.

Schmeling was said to weigh 192 pounds after the workout. He will leave here by train tomorrow and spend the night before the fight with a German friend in New York. His proposed trip in an airplane has been vetoed by the promoters.

GERMANY FEARS FOR MAXIE

BERLIN, June 10.—(INS.)—In spite of all the favorable reports emanating from his training camp at Endicott, N. Y., Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, who meets Jack Sharkey for the world title Thursday night, is not regarded here as having a very great chance for victory.

German sportswriters are almost unanimous in their pessimism, refusing to be influenced by training camp reports of his condition and prowess.

His year-long layoff is regarded by German writers as a grave handicap, and the previous poor showing of foreign contenders in the United States also are pointed to as cause for pessimism.

The battle, however, is being awaited with great interest.

Maxie's brother, Rudolph, and mother will listen in on the German broadcast from the ringside.

Stella Walsh Wins Sprint in Toronto

TORONTO, Ont., June 10.—(AP.)—Stella Walsh, Cleveland flier, won the 100 meters sprint from a fast field at an international women's athletic meet held here last night in connection with the International Shrine convention.

Three games in the Central League head the sandlot program this evening. Lincoln Civics will meet the Allegheny Collegians in a battle for the league leadership. Cosletts meet Fintex at Warrington Park and Y. M. H. A. tackles Soho Board of Trade at Moultrie Park. This means that all of the leading clubs are in action, and with a tight race, the best in the district, none can afford to lose.

In the West Penn circuit, Whitaker is at Dormont, Homestead Aces at Wilmerding and Verona at North Bessemer. All of these games are worth while, as all of the clubs are fighting for points in the league standing.

LIFERS MEET TEST

Reliance Life at Burgwin Park, meeting B. O., should be worth while as this is the obstacle the Lifers must overcome in order to win that first half championship. The Insurance boys are going at a sensational clip.

In the City League J. L. Thomas meets the Jimmy Smith Club, while Book Shoe plays Pleasant Valley Smilers at Wilson Avenue Field. This game should test the Shoemen, as Manager Dunsky is running for the leaders. Lou Jacoby will probably work this game for the Champions.

MEMPHIS FORFEITS

The Homestead Grays and the Memphis Club were tied at 10-all in the ninth inning last evening when the Memphis manager, calling his players from the diamond, declared it was too dark to continue play and refused to go on with the game. The Grays claimed the game by forfeit. They had scored six runs in the last half of the ninth to tie the score.

In the City League, J. L. Thomas walloped W. O. W., 16 to 1 and Book Shoe turned in an 8 to 7 win over St. Johns. Homewood defeated the Homestead Aces, 12 to 2 in a West Penn League fracas and in the Commercial League, Mellon Bank downed McCreerys, 8 to 2.

REICKS WIN

Reick-McJunkins won over Mine Safety, 8 to 2 in the C. and I. circuit and in the Metropolitan League, the Collier Colt Juniors won over the Christie Club, 7 to 1.

Ingomar downed Blawnox, 4 to 1 in the North Side Twilight League. Reliance Life nosed out Edgewood, 7 to 6 in the Greater Pittsburgh circuit and Iroquois upset the Union Printers, 6 to 2.

DETECTING THE TRUE LINE TO THE HOLE.

In putting, is it proper to place the putter in front of the ball to aid the eye in detecting the right line to the hole?

Answered by AL ESPINOSA.

Former Florida West Coast champion. Tied for LaJolla open; Mid-American open, P. G. A. qualifying medal, Houston open, 1930.

Yes; in putting I always find it better to place the putter in front of the ball to aid the eye in detecting the true line to the hole. It always is better to place the putter in front of the ball, as it gives one the correct line with the cup and also acts as a sort of balance for the putting stroke. There are very few good golfers who do not do this when sighting.

JUNIOR GOLF TOURNEY TEST POSTPONED

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

The entries for the third annual Western Pennsylvania junior amateur golf tournament for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy and other beautiful prizes, already have started to swamp the Golf Tournament Editor. If the early flow of applications for entrance to the tourney may be an indication of what is to come—then the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's third junior championship already has been made a success.

A few more items of interest for those youngsters who intend playing in the two team competitions to be held this year in conjunction with the tournament, which, as you know, has been slated for the Schenley Park municipal links, on Monday, July 7.

Preparatory and high school teams, through their respective coaches, physical directors or captains, must enter the names of the person chief of their teams on or before June 30. Club caddie teams must be qualified on or before Thursday, July 3. All individual entries close July 2.

ALCOMA TEST FRIDAY

The first club qualifying round of the tournament, which was to have been held this morning at the Alcoma Country Club, where Caddiemaster Jim Bruno is endeavoring to toll off the eight low scorers from the caddie ranks at that club who will participate in the big Hearst competition, was postponed until Friday because of rain.

This tournament is by no means strictly a caddie tournament—it is open to all amateur golfers 19 years of age and under, which includes caddies who are 17 and under. Amateurs who do not caddie at this time who are within the age limit, and who are members at clubs through the district, do not have occasion to qualify. It is only the caddies who must compete in a preliminary qualifying test—and it is an imperative rule that they do.

FIRST ENTRIES IN

If a boy is 19 years of age or under and attending a school of learning not higher than preparatory grades, and an amateur, he is welcome to enter his name in the event.

The first entries are scattered far and wide throughout the Tri-state District. Two boys from Connellsville had the honor of registering the first pair of entry blanks officially. They are Stanley Clarke, 404 N. Pittsburgh street, and John Renner, 140 W. Fayette street, both attending Connellsville High School, the first being 15 and the second 17.

Reider Cullhan, of 1636 Highland avenue, who qualified for the Pup's Foot Golf Club team last year, again has entered his name for the qualifying test at that club, while Wallace Kerr, of 1310 Center avenue, Turtle Creek, 18 years of age, is going to try his skill at winning the big trophy on July 7.

Charles Douglass, 14, of 244 Yale avenue, West View, a caddie at Highland, was one of the first to send in his entry. Rudolph Smodel, 15, of 230 Miller avenue, Turtle Creek, who plays at the Edgewood Country Club, also has entered his name.

Send your entry in NOW! Get your school team organized, and play for your school as well as for yourself, for all team contestants may still win individual prizes as well as a team award—don't delay another day. Show us if you really are a golfer—at only beaming of your prowess.

Kamm Is Benched In Sox Shakeup

CHICAGO, June 10.—(AP.)—Willie Kamm, who led American League third basemen in fielding in 1928 and 1929, has been benched by Manager Donie Bush, of the White Sox. Kamm has failed to get started this season and was included in a wholesale shift which sent Irving Jeffries to third base, Smead Jolley from right field to left, Carl Reynolds to right and Johnny Watwood to center, in an effort to add punch to the Sox attack.

CHAMPS HEAD A. M. A. MEET ENTRIES

By JESS CARVER.

Headed by dashing Mr. Henry (Hank) Schnellbach, who caused such a commotion in Western Pennsylvania track circles last year when he swiped both the 100 and 220-yard dash champions from Petah Bowen in the A. M. A. meet, no less than 10 and possibly 11 titleholders of 1929 will be on hand to defend their laurels in in this years championship meet in the Pitt Stadium Saturday afternoon.

Henry Schnellbach

Among those who will NOT be on hand to defend their wreaths will be the selfsame Mr Bowen who won the National Intercollegiate 440-yard championship at Chicago Saturday afternoon and who is possessor of the A. M. A. quarter-mile title; A. E. Rose, former Penn and Olympic broad jumper, owner of the Association jump championship, and possibly Victor Pickard, pole vault king.

10 CHAMPS BACK

Those about certain to attend Saturday's gathering include Schnellbach, in the dashes; Eaman and Lewis, in the hurdles; Tankins and Pesci in the distance races; Watkins, in the 880; Cooper in the high jump; Friedman, in the javelin; Brownlee, in the discus and Ege, in the shot.

Everett Utterback, of Pitt, if he competes, is the best bet to take up the broad jump title where the likeable Rose laid it down and Bill Miller and Woody Harris, also of Pitt, figure to fight it out for the honor of replacing their teammate. Pete, as 440 ruler. If Pickard does not vault, Slim Merton, of Carnegie Tech, has a pip of a chance to don the togs.

Schnellbach, in his first competition of the year in the A. M. A. handicap meet four weeks ago, ran a neat 100 yard dash and as neat a 220 to indicate that he has lost none of his speed and endurance since last year.

Sport Vignettes

Jack Zivic's baby daughter, Jacqueline, recently had her picture taken being kissed by Jack Sharkey at the latter's training camp, but the photographer mistook Zivic for Pete Latzo and the photo was broadcast and printed around the country with the child's name being given as Jacqueline Latzo .... And is Jack sore about it! .... Zivic, by the way, picks Sharkey to win handily over Schmeling .... Has it occurred to you that this fight will be the first contest involving the heavyweight championship in which a champion will not be a participant since John L. Sullivan established himself as the first ruler? .... Even when Jeffries resigned there was a champion, for he passed the title on to Marvin Hart, who lost it to Tommy Burns .... Burns was beaten by Jack Johnson and Li'l Artha was the defending champion when he met Jeffries at Reno in 1910, Jeff coming out of retirement in an effort to regain the crown for the white race .... The retirement of Gene Tunney left the title open and that's how it will happen that no champion will enter the ring Thursday night but one will emerge from it at the finish .... In view of the fact that Sharkey rules an 8-to-5 favorite and may even go up to 2 to 1 for his bout with Schmeling, odds on past heavyweight title battles are interesting .... Sullivan was a 4-to-1 shot over Corbett, but Corbett won .... Corbett ruled 5 to 3 over Fitzsimmons and was knocked out .... Fitzsimmons was 2 to 1 over Jeffries and lost .... Jeffries' popularity made him a 10-to-7 bet over Johnson, but Johnson knocked him out in 15 rounds .... Jess Willard, for some reason or other, finally was installed at 6 to 5 over Johnson at Havana, and justified the confidence of his backers by winning .... Big Jess was 6 to 5 over Jack Dempsey at Toledo and was knocked down seven times in the first round and finally resigned in his corner at the end of the third round .... And Dempsey was a 3-to-1 fling over Tunney at Philadelphia, but took a slugging and lost the title .... Betting odds on heavyweight fights seemingly are great things—to forget about in doping likely winners.—HARRY KECK.

GIRL UNAFRAID

Ken Is Enraged at Web Of Circumstances

CHAPTER LIII.

Ardeth spoke in a queer little whisper. "Oh—I don't know how to explain it. I heard two men talking at the party—Carolyn Fors's the party, you know. They said you'd lost a lot on stocks today. They said you looked dreadful, and I had to come."

Ken cried aloud. "But I don't—I stalled. How could you know that I was here, Ardeth?"

"I didn't know," she replied simply. "But I was sure. I saw you. I know that sounds ridiculous, but I did. I was looking in the mirror in Carolyn's bedroom. The lights were low and there in the glass I seemed to see you sit bolt—how I knew that you were sitting here at the desk. Your head was in your hands and your hair was all mussed up as though you'd been running your fingers through it. Just as it is now."

He was watching her with startled eyes. "I can't imagine how you knew. I was sitting—like that—letting listening to the roar of the city and thinking—"

"I know what you were thinking," she whispered. "Oh, Ken, you wouldn't!"

His eyes wavered, went guiltily to the window. He shook his head and drew a long breath. "No, of course not. Not really. I did go over and look out and the thought came to me how easy it would be to—to get out of it all. But I came back and sat down—thinking—and then I heard you at the door."

He held her slightly away, looking at her with startled wonder. "And somehow you knew I was here. That's marvelous, Ardeth. It's—uncanny!"

She shook her head and her eyes were glowing. "Not uncanny, Ken. When two people love the way we do. You were thinking of me. I was thinking of you. There is such a thing as knowing another's thoughts when you love—"

Ken Enraged

He caught her to him and his words were a groan. "Oh, Ardeth, this is hell!"

For a long moment they stood silent. Ken abruptly lifted his head, put her away.

"You must go back, dear. They will miss you."

"Oh, Ken . . . and leave you here alone." There was heartbreak in her voice. "Oh, it's cruel! It's wrong!" she broke out desperately.

"A wicked waste!" His voice was cold with rage. "Damn the laws of a civilization which can get a man in a trap like this. Poor weak fool, I was—trying to do the right thing. A man was never intended to brush aside his own convictions—his own desires, his right to happiness, for others! Reach and take—while you have youth and the ability to enjoy. Life loves the strong man—that's why it's played football with me, I suppose—"

The smothered intensity of his voice was like a curse. The girl's heart leaped at the white strain of his face. Fear clutched her heart and she found herself in his arms, pressing her hand over his mouth.

Cecile Determined

"No—no, darling! Don't be bitter! It doesn't do any good. Ah, dearest, don't look like that! It doesn't seem you. Wait! Somehow it will come out all right for us!"

"Right!" He had tossed his head out of the reach of that frantic hand and his voice was a jeer. "Right—Not a chance! She knows I want you and she'll not make a move. You can't fathom the cold-blooded deviltry—" He checked himself, stared at her with haggard eyes.

Her heart was pierced by the wildness of his gaze. "Oh, dearest don't! She was all mother now in her love. She drew his head down to her own, cradled his head in her arms, crooned to him.

He lifted his head, put her gently aside and tried to smile at her. That smile hurt the girl. It was such a faint shadow of the old gay Ken.

"I'm all right now. I'm like a volcano lately, Ardeth. Well—time to get you back before people notice. Don't let's start the tongues wagging. Ardeth, I have the car downstairs. I'll drive you."

Neither spoke on that return drive. Ardeth sat limply against the cushions of the seat, gazing now at her hands, relaxed like lifeless things in her lap, now at Ken's tense profile.

Just so had she sat on happier nights—nights which now seemed to have happened very long ago, to another girl. Now and then, really peered through Ken beside her. Surreptitiously she fingered a flow of his overcoat as though to assure herself of his reality.

Lies to Tom

Ken stopped the car on the dark side street at the foot of the red brick steps. She got out and stood uncertainly, her eyes clinging wretchedly to his through the dark. Like a child she held up her face for his kiss. Then she turned and was running blindly along the cement walk, of the garden, arms stretched wide to feel her way.

She paused for a frightened moment on the porch before she dared enter the long French window. Luckily a dance was going on and the bedroom was deserted.

A moment only to slip off her coat, to fluff powder on her face and dab her cold cheeks with rouge.

In the hall she almost bumped into Tom. His anxious face lit up at the sight of her.

"Ardeth, where have you been? Carolyn and I have been looking all over for you!"

"I didn't feel well so I went and lay down in the sunroom," she lied, hoping the sunroom had escaped their search. She bent over, straightening the bunch of velvet pansies at her waist. "Didn't want to be a wet blanket, you know—"

New Year Starts

Tom bore her away to the crowd of dancers. It was all unreal, like a bad dream. With a leap of the heart she saw that it was nearly 12 o'clock . . . Twelve o'clock—a new year!

"Lights out!" roared Len Forsythe as the clock hands quivered on the hour. "Now, silence! Listen, everybody!"

The room plunged into blackness and Ardeth felt Tom's arm slip about her as dramatic stillness fell on the crowd.

Low and silvery, the chimes of the tall clock in the hall. Then it was striking the hour with a deliberation which somehow chilled the blood of the girl who listened.

. . . Two . . . three . . . six. Stifling, this blackness and silence! Like fate, mysterious, bidding . . . twelve . . .

Pandemonium broke loose with the last stroke. Horns and whistles, rattles and drums . . .

The lights flashing up on gleaming eyes, laughing red lips . . .

"Happy New Year!" Tom shouted and bent to kiss her. He drew back, eyes suddenly alarmed. "Why, honey—you're crying!"

Women's Greatest Crime Is Love Thievery, Fay King Asserts

By FAY KING

STUDENTS of criminology have long agreed that crime among women interprets itself in sex.

Prostitution and illicit love affairs for gain are the expression of the criminal tendency in women.

That is why fewer women are listed as common criminals, and then only when they are no longer young and attractive.

The woman who gets a thrill out of stealing another woman's husband, or delights in the risk of a dangerous flirtation, is in the same class with the male crook who gets a great kick out of robbing a bank, or keeping his crooked schemes just within the law.

A shoplifter must pay a great penalty in proportion to her petty crime.

Women who rob the innocent of happiness and protection should pay greater.

Katherine Tells How Noel Burned His Letter

Katherine's look at me as she told me of her impression concerning the letters received by Noel and Mary was half apologetic and wholly self-deprecatory. I answered it promptly and emphatically.

"I'd trust your intuition against the deductions of a dozen logicians." I told her, "so we'll just take it for granted that they did come from the same person and go on from there. Did you notice these things before you delivered them or afterward?"

"Before," she answered with a rueful little quirk of her lips. "I had no chance to see them afterward. I don't know what made me take special notice of the letters anyway, except that I'm trained to see things. But I was mighty glad I did when I noticed the effect they had upon Noel and Mary. They slit the envelopes after the usual perfunctory apologies and drew out the sheets. They were puzzled by the opening of each; I could see that plainly, and it was with an almost simultaneous movement that they turned to the signatures. For the moment they were absorbed in the letters, instead of each other, and neither noticed what I did, the look of dismay which sprang into their eyes. There was something more than dismay—actual horror—in each face.

"Noel was the first to speak," she went on. "With his eyes carefully averted from Mary, he thrust the letter underneath his pillow.

"'I don't feel like reading just now,' he said to me, 'and this isn't important. It will keep. I believe I'd like to go to sleep if you don't mind.'"

"I knew that it was a ruse to get both Mary and me out of the room. But Mary needed no excuse. She was already on her feet, and looking at her laughing face I could hardly believe that I had seen so different a look upon it but a second before. Some actress that girl. Phil Veritten's going to deprive himself and the public of something pretty splendid if he doesn't come out of his sulks and take her back into favor."

I gave her an assenting nod, but no verbal comment lest I delay her recital, and she took up the thread of her story again.

"Mary blew a kiss at Noel. 'You don't need to hint quite so broadly, old thing,' she told him. 'I'll go 'way and let you sleep.' She danced out of the room as she sang the last words, and if she heard Noel call 'Mary' in that intense voice of his, she pretended she didn't. When the door had closed behind her, Noel spoke hurriedly to me.

"'Don't bother to draw the curtains,' he said. 'I don't want to sleep, after all. But I'd like a cigaret, if you don't mind.'

"It was a half hour before he called me.

"'I haven't slept, but I've rested,' he said. 'And would you mind emptying my ash tray.' I very carelessly set fire to the letter I had finished reading and put down near it."

"'Where is Mary?' he demanded.

"'In her own room,' I answered. 'I'll call her.'

"'Please,' he said like a child, and I went in search of Mary, finding her on the balcony looking out on the street below. She hadn't been crying, but there was a strained look—a suffering look in her eyes that made me want to cuddle her. But I knew better than that. The last thing in the world she wanted was sympathy—just then. You could just see the fight she was making to keep up for Noel. And of course—there was no sign of her letter anywhere."

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

And, Still We Love Them—

There is no such thing as "lost love." A real lover cannot be LOST—he can only be temporarily mislaid. Nothing on earth can keep a man away from a woman he honestly loves except death or jail.

About all the average man can see in his wife's new beach ensemble this season is—bankruptcy.

This is the season when men all over the country are sitting up late nights preparing their Annual Alibi for going to the Big June Convention—and leaving the Little Wife at home.

Woman may be the Guiding Star of a man's life; but the modern wife seems more like a "shooting star" than like a fixed constellation.

A man's idea of the time it takes to get to the office or to get back to the house for dinner may be a little hazy, but when it comes to knowing the exact moment to stop work in order to make the links for a golf-date, he has a perfect "time-consciousness."

The average woman never suspects how full of noble sentiments, geniality and brilliant wit her husband is until she has trailed him to a banquet or two and heard him make an after-dinner speech.

As long as a woman can keep that "Twinkle, twinkle, little STAR—How I wonder what you are!" attitude toward a man, no other woman's charms can dim the glow of his affections for her. It is only when she lets him know that she really understands him that he begins to feel that he is "misunderstood."

Alas, the fact that a man has a single-track mind never seems to prevent him from having a double-track heart.

THE OFFICE WIFE

you. If," said Anne, trying to explain her code—"if you only liked me, too—I might. It was sweet. But since I've known that you cared so much, it isn't fair to you, Ted, dear."

"But I want you for my own," he said, his voice roughened. "Oh, you'd love me, too, Anne, if you'd let yourself go. But you won't. You hold me off. You don't give me any chance. I—don't I know how you could love a man if you'd forget yourself a little? I know! I want you to marry me."

"I can take care of you, Anne. I'm doing well. I'll be doing better. Sanders got where he is now from the job I have. They like my work. They've raised me twice this year. If you'd marry me—I swear, Anne, with you beside me I'd get to the top."

"Listen to me," said Anne, her quick but usually controlled temper touched. "Nothing can stop me. I took a business course when I left school. Afterward, mother was sick and had an operation, and I had to stay home a whole year to look after things. Then I got a typist's job, later a stenographer's.

"I took extension courses at night and landed, as you know, in the copywriting department of the agency. Six months ago Mr. Sanders took me from Mr. Johnson.

"What's to prevent me from working permanently with the chief if I make good and Andrews doesn't return? And you know perfectly well that with the experience of a job like that I'd qualify for executive positions. What's going to stop me?"

Anne's Views

"Nothing," Ted told her, "if you want it. But look at Andrews. She's a woman—and she's been let out, whether temporarily or permanently, because of her health. She'll never get anywhere after this.

"Anne, you were made for love, for marriage, for your own man, a home, for babies. You weren't made to waste yourself in an office, slaving for men who don't give a hang what work does to you as long as the work is satisfactory to them.

"Marry me—and be a woman and not a machine. I'll love you all my life; I'll carry you on my hands; I'll work for you. And you'll help me make the grade, Anne, Anne!"

But she shook her head. She was oddly angry. Perhaps at the comparison between herself and Janet Andrews. She was not like Janet; she never would be like her, that sexless woman! She was herself, alive, vital, brimming with the joy of life, with the instinct for adventure, with passion dimly guessed at. Woman—or—machine?

Refuses to Kiss Ted

"Nothing I've seen of marriage makes me think any too well of it," she told him. "Look at my mother working her life away for father, for us, cooped up in a kitchen, tied to a duster! Look at Jim's wife in that miserable little flat with two babies and Jim away all day and half the night. And Betty Howard in the office, with a man and a child to support, fretting herself sick, not getting ahead—a woman with her brain and talent! No, Ted, I think I'd rather be a machine, after all; an independent one."

"If you loved me——" he began doggedly; and, looking at the white blur of his face in the starlight and sensing how hurt he was, she softened.

"Oh, if! If I loved you, I might; though I'd be an idiot! "Yes, if I loved you—but perhaps I don't!"

He said, stubborn, his gay eyes clouded: "But you can't keep me from loving you, and trying——"

"Please," she said, "let's go on. All this—it isn't any use. We just get angry and say things to hurt each other."

He shrugged; put the car in gear. "Where to?" he asked sullenly.

"It doesn't matter. We could dance; listen to some music."

They drove on for several miles, danced at a little roadhouse and had something to eat. It was 1 o'clock when he left her at the brick house.

There on the doorstep, the street dark and silent about them, he tried to take her into his urgent arms.

"Ah, let me. Let me!"

"Ted," she murmured, shaken. "Ted." She disengaged herself gently and spoke with finality. "What's the use?"

His arms dropped to his sides. Her key grated in the lock and then she was gone. He turned and went back to the car, the brightly painted dapper little car, now so desolately empty of her.

Mother Puzzled

As Anne tiptoed to the bedroom she shared with her sister, Mrs. Murdock appeared. In the hall under one dim light they talked in whispers.

"Tired, dear?"

"Not very," Anne said again, and tried to smile.

Her mother moved closer to her and looked into the girl's eyes. "Teddy's a nice boy," she said, "and he'll go far. It's a fine thing, Anne, to marry young and climb the ladder with your man."

But Anne shook her bright head. Her answering whisper had a thread of laughter running through it, but her eyes remained somber.

"You can't get rid of your old maid for a while yet," she said, and caught her little mother to her and kissed her soundly. Releasing her, she admonished: "Go back to bed, Molly Murdock, and forget about me. I'm all right. You're half in love with Ted yourself, and it's you he comes to see, anyway. I'll tell on you if you don't behave."

"Shame on you, cloaking your own flirtations with your hard-working daughter!"

She gave her mother a squeeze, then disappeared into her bedroom. Mrs. Murdock was smiling reluctantly—what nonsense the girl talked—but her eyes were thoughtful. What was the world coming to when healthy, pretty girls preferred typewriters to babies?

High Standards

But perhaps the right man hadn't come along yet. With this age-old solution for consolation, Mrs. Murdock went back to bed.

Anne undressed in semi-darkness. Kathleen was sound asleep in the bed next to her own, one round arm above her dark head, the gardenia texture of her cheek faintly flushed. "She's a lovely thing," Anne thought, with some misgiving.

Later, lying there in the darkness, she thought of Ted and of her mother's gallant code: "It's a fine thing to marry young and climb the ladder with your man."

But if a girl wanted a ladder of her own, wanted to climb unhindered to the top? And if—if she wanted her man, wouldn't it be one who had already made his way unaided, a man with strength and tremendous driving power?

The time was passing when girls who came into contact with men, men of established position, of vision and capabilities, were willing to marry those who stood at the bottom of the ladder.

"We set high standards," thought Anne drowsily, "nowadays."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Heredity Has Little to Do With Disease

There are many persons who do a great deal of worrying over the prospect of inheriting some disease that occurred in the family generations before. Perhaps it is natural to worry over a thing of this sort.

DR. COPELAND

There is no need of being frightened about it. Everyone should understand this.

It is true that one may have a tendency to a certain disease which may have occurred in generations that have gone before. But having a tendency to a disease is quite a different matter from actually having the disease. It is possible to train one's self to good habits of living so that the tendency in question is counteracted.

There are very few diseases in which heredity has any bearing whatsoever. Certain physical traits run in families, and the habits of one generation may be handed down to the next. You may inherit a prominent nose from your father, or from your grandfather. Your walk may be characteristic of your father.

Just because your mother was narrow-chested and had tuberculosis is no reason why you should have the disease, even though you are narrow-chested. You may have the same anatomy and a tendency to tuberculosis, but you have the power to fix good habits of living so that you build up resistance to that disease.

By keeping your body well nourished, by avoiding all habits that lower resistance of the body, you are pretty safe against all disease. In order to do this you must have good, nutritious food in well-balanced meals. Get out of doors and exercise in the fresh air every day. You need a great deal of sunshine. Breathe deeply. Sleep in well-ventilated rooms.

Have some agreeable occupation. Be happy and do not worry. Have pleasant entertainment and relaxation. Cultivate the right sort of friends. Keep regular hours and have at least eight hours of sleep every night.

That physical traits are inherited there is no doubt. If one is brought up in a family where bad habits are formed, bad habits of any sort, you probably formed very early in life some of those same bad habits. Order your life to the best rules of hygiene and live up to them. You will then be able to build up such a constitution that you can resist any disease.

After all, our lives are very much what we make them. Heredity does not play so large a part in life as many have thought. Taken early enough, if the environment is what it should be, ill health and physical defects can be corrected.

What is to become of the adult is determined largely in infancy and youth. If right habits of living are formed then, there is reasonable expectation for good health throughout life. One's eating habits, respect for morals, control of the emotions, all have a direct bearing on what a man's life is to be.

Answers to Health Queries

G. B. L. Q.—What is the cause of dark colored patches on the body?

A.—This condition is due to more or less poor intestinal elimination. The first thing to do, therefore, is to correct constipation.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, June 11

Judging by the very strong sidereal juxtaposition of the luminaries, with Jupiter, the Major Benefic, this day may be expected to bring important events. There is prospect of notable developments in employment and with negotiations with superiors, leaders and those in places of authority, whom it is desirable at this time to approach for favors or concessions. Also, the Jupiter position holds out similar promise of advancement, progress and prosperity. But an indulgence in rashness or contention might prove nullifying.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of advancement, promotion, preferment and increase of funds with expansion of business and opportunities. But they should be careful not to jeopardize this auspicious prospect by indulging in hasty, rash or quarrelsome conduct.

A child born on this day should be efficient and capable of handling large affairs and it may reach important and powerful position, fed by its ambitions and energy, but it should be schooled in self-restraint and amiability, lest it overstep itself.

Household Hints

Camphor and peppermint soften the surface of the varnish temporary so that the furniture polish is more effective.

Can you tell a poor fish from a good one? It's a simple matter if you heed a little advice. The one that you don't even want to take into your kitchen, let alone your dining room, has eyes that are no longer clear, but dull and shrunk into the sockets. The flesh is no longer resilient, but pits if pressed against the sockets. That to a discriminating housewife is a "poor fish."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Handwriting Fad

DEAR MRS. BEEKMAN:

1. Will you kindly tell me if blonde kid slippers are correct for Winter wear, especially for informal evening affairs?

2. Please give me a general criticism of my stationery and handwriting. Most people won't be frank. C. R.

1. Slippers of this type are appropriate for Summer wear. Slippers of less "street-y" materials, say of satin or crepe de chine, are more appropriate for wear in the evening.

2. Your handwriting is, I think, unusually interesting and attractive—full of character. With a few changes it would have an even more interesting appearance. It is the curlycues to which I object mostly, the rather silly looking circles over the i's instead of the dots that should be used, and the too ornate capitals. I realize that it is more or less of a fad to make circles over i's, but one's eyes are so compelled by the appearance that one loses the charm of the rest of the writing. Don't you agree? Also, do not abbreviate the names of States or months in your heading.

And why not background your good-looking writing with good-looking letter paper?

Assisting the Young Lady

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it correct to cut waffles with a knife?

2. Who should help the lady with her coat in a restaurant, the waiter or her escort?

3. Is it correct for the lady to hold the gentleman's hat while in a theater?

SHIRLEY.

1. Yes.

2. The girl's escort should stand beside her chair, before he takes his seat, to assist her when she takes off her coat. And, when they are ready to leave, he goes to her chair to help her put on her coat.

It is extremely poor form for him to allow the waiter the privilege that is his privilege and duty.

3. No—never.

Giving and Receiving

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

In giving wedding anniversary or Valentine gifts, should the husband give the wife gifts, or should they give each other gifts? E. J.

In the spirit of "It is more blessed to give," each would probably wish to give gifts to the other.

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

When wrinkles form in front of the ears, watch out. The skin is losing tone and elasticity. Give it plenty of cold water and ice rubs. Don't overlook the gentle creaming at bedtime, and let the emollient remain on the skin surface over night. Witch hazel is a good astringent; apply freely every morning, after using ice cold water.

Shoulders too thickly padded with fat cells can be thinned down to proper dimensions by gym work. Five minutes of chinning the bar will send the fat cells into a state of despair; they will decide to evaporate. Swinging Indian clubs is another good adipose killer. Mechanical massage is the lazy woman's hope. It is a slow and expensive remedy.

Opposition to Tariff Rapidly Sweeping U. S.

By B. C. FORBES

OPPOSITION TO THE TARIFF bill is multiplying so rapidly that many people believe President Hoover will veto it on the basis that it violates the promises he held out to the people, that it would increase the cost of living here and that it would gravely jeopardize our exports, now so essential to prosperity, seeing that 30 foreign nations have protested against the measure, apprehensive by the threatened boycotting of American products.

The public and even the business world, long manifested an apathetic attitude towards the jockeying in Congress. It was something of a Chinese puzzle to know from day to day what was what. The House would do one thing one day, the Senate would do something different the next day. Then one or both would vote all over again and, as likely as not, undo what had already been done.

But at last the people have become aroused. There is no doubting that the tariff bill has become the burning question before the thinking people of the country.

Nor is there today room to doubt that hostility to the Hoover-Jones measure is becoming more bitter and more widespread.

LETTERS ARE POURING into this column. Not one per cent champion the tariff.

A few extracts follow:

W. T. Rawleigh of Freeport, Ill., president of the company bearing his name, writes in part:

"For many years of my business life I was in sympathy with the moderate protective policies of the Republican party, because it was generally recognized and conceded that our small infant industries of that day needed protection to enable them to compete with the old well-established industries of England, France and Germany and the cheap labor of the Far Eastern countries.

"But as my experience has increased through the conduct of my own business here and in foreign countries and by intensive study of economic conditions throughout the world, I have become convinced that the excessively high protective tariff system which has grown up in this country constitutes not only an unwarranted burden upon consumers, but a serious obstacle to sound and stable prosperity.

"It has long seemed to me that this tariff question will never be settled right until the intelligent and informed business men of the country assume the leadership and insist upon a readjustment of our tariff system that would be in the interest of the country as a whole with due regard to both our domestic and foreign trade."

JOHN LURIE, Perrocrete Import Company, New York, states:

"Cement imports of the United States during 1929 were 1,727,000 barrels, approximately 25 per cent less than for the preceding year and only 1 per cent of the total domestic consumption. Due to high rail freight rates, the imported product cannot compete in price and is not sold at any inland points. The market of the importer is entirely limited to the seaboard.

"The great majority of the cement mills are already enjoying unprecedented profits.

"Cement is a 90 per cent machine-made product, and the small benefit to American labor is more than offset by revenues derived by the American merchant marine, American stevedores and the handling and distribution of the imported product.

"The proposed duty of 23 cents per barrel will add an additional $46,000,000 to the already enormous profits now enjoyed by cement mills."

ROBERT S. CLARY, Washington, D. C., in course of a lengthy communication, says:

"We can't increase sales volume by raising unnatural trade barriers. Some day our leaders will realize that merchandise—like money—should be permitted to flow wherever it wishes, wherever it can earn the biggest wages, wherever it can be manufactured or produced most economically and marketed most inexpensively.

"Some day our big business men will all agree that the United States cannot emulate the foolish factory which tries to sell 90 per cent of its total output to its own employes. Some day, I am sure, our leaders will appreciate that if trade-preventing tariff walls are good for a nation, they should also be good for an individual state—and vice versa. Yet I'm confident that the most militant Grundy-ite wouldn't think of advocating the erection of 'protective' and 'retaliation' spite-fence tariff walls by the individual commonwealths of these United States of ours. It's absurd."

NEWSPAPERS HAVE a motto "when in doubt, leave out." As to whether this proposed higgledy-piggledy tariff should be passed, even Congress admittedly now has grave doubts. What will Hoover do?

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 10.—Listed bonds were irregular in broadened trading today. A good market developed for prime railroad bonds with resultant improvement in price, but most of the issues in the strictly investment group ruled steady to weak. Convertible issues continued to yield to the pressure of a sagging level of prices in the stock market.

NEW YORK, June 10. (AP)—Transactions in the bond section today on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (as compiled in same manner as United States bonds in millions and thirty seconds of millions):

MONEY BEGGING FOR CHANCE TO WORK

Enterprising Men Soon Will Take Advantage of Low Cash Rates to Expand

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, June 10.—The partnership between capital and labor is reflected in the current position of money. The movement of capital funds. The present demand for time money rates in Wall street to 2½ per cent, the lowest level in years, signifies a certain state of unemployment.

Money rates at the present time are submarginal, reflecting an unusually low demand for funds. Cheap money, like low prices, is an invitation to enterprising men to expand their operations and to undertake new projects. But another ingredient must be mixed with cheap money and that is confidence. The thing about cheap money in New York money is not that experience has proved that business is the best in the world when money is at 6 per cent. The 6 per cent rate of interest represents a risk element.

Caution keeps the interest rate up for time funds by banks to commercial borrowers here and in England. Perhaps that caution is why operators in bank stocks, a favored industry whose earnings are not subject to the wide fluctuations from boom to panic which affect industrial corporations.

ENGLAND SPEEDIER

Incidentally, the brilliant Sir Josiah Stamp, director of the Bank of England, hands that the much-vaulted American speed does not apply to banking. Sir Josiah told his friends that it takes three times as long for foreigners to borrow money in New York as in London.

The current economic disease which has devastated the business realm has to some extent affected the purses of corporation stockholders. Although the number of increases has thus far this year outnumbered decreases, 205 corporations have decreased or omitted dividends since January 1. Investment trouble textile and clothing enterprises and mining companies have been leaders in reducing dividends. But outside of those groups the great industrial railroad and public utility companies have been able to keep up their dividend disbursements.

Cheap money is quietly and unostentatiously ridding Wall street of the evil of hoarding lending. At prevailing bargain rates for money there is little or no incentive for investment trusts, business corporations, trustees and wealthy individuals to compete with the banks in making advances to brokers on collateral loans. The very large increase since the first of the year in collateral loans held by banks represents a shifting of such loans by hostile lenders back onto the shoulders of the banks. Though this process temporarily reduces the investing power of the banks, the transaction is a healthy one, and will have the effect of once more putting the banks in control of the money market. The increase in reported brokers' loans last week was probably merely a bookkeeping offset for the disappearance of "invisible" loans to brokers which do not go through banking channels and appear in the published statistics.

OPPORTUNITY AT HAND

Cheap money constitutes an opportunity for capable businessmen. In times of sagging public morale, Ralph Waldo Emerson's aphorism, "America! It is but another name for opportunity," needs to be recalled.

Warm weather in recent days has been a constructive business influence, causing a pickup in retail sales, especially of light wearing apparel. This seems an appropriate occasion to repeat my annual advice to business executives (and also to the top sergeants and privates of industry) to heighten their summer efficiency by dressing scientifically. This means laying aside woolen suits, and wearing instead tropical weight garments.

Current unemployment is temporarily depriving industry of the long term stimulus which has come over the last five years from a gradual decline of the cost of living in the United States. In interpreting the business significance of the decline in the cost of living, Dominick & Dominick, investment bankers, point out:

"The widening gap between cost of living and wage levels is important not only to the individual worker, but to industry and society as a whole. Every increase in real income means that a smaller proportion of earnings must be devoted to the primary necessities of food, housing and clothing, and that a larger proportion is available for the miscellaneous expenditures which make a higher and more abundant standard of living. Not only has the wage earner shared in the economic benefits of the last decade, but his increased purchasing power has been, and should continue to be, one of the bases of industrial progress."

RIVER SHIPPING HEAVY IN MAY

CHARLEROI, Pa., June 10.—Coal shipments on the Monongahela River during May exceeded the April haul by 43,965 tons, it was announced by Lockmaster Anderson Caseber, of Lock No. 4, today. Total coal shipments for May were 1,766,000 tons, while coke shipping, on an urgent 24-hour schedule was only 500 tons in excess of April.

Low water is causing difficulty in dredging operations in local pools.

Stock Exchange Topics

Expect Announcement of New Financing by United Corp

[illegible] well-informed [illegible] Corporation [illegible] that the organization will need additional funds early this fall to finance [illegible] operating utilities. It is also understood there is a [illegible] that new financing may be announced in the near future and that it will be in the form of convertible rights for stockholders to purchase the $5 a share preferred stock of the company. Some interests have been inclined to pick up the stock on the theory that the company's share in both our [illegible] and natural gas developments might make the stock one of the popular leaders when the market again moves forward.

Some traders seem to think it will be a long time before the market develops activity on the bull side. The best guess is that it will not be many weeks before transactions are running far ahead of what they have been over the last week or two. The so-called "big" interests have too many big things on the carpet to want the market to run into either a state of decay or prolonged decline. "The market," as one broker puts it, "is what the 'big interests' wish to make it, and they are assured of a public following nine times out of ten."

Railway executives, particularly those of the Northwestern roads, snapped off further sharply yesterday on the statement by F. W. Sargent, head of the Chicago and Northwestern, that May figures of the road would show gross $1,900,000 and surplus about $700,000 under the same month a year ago. Mr. Sargent, however, was more optimistic on the balance of the year, stating that loadings of this month have run ahead of May but are still behind June last year. He finds prospects the best ever for grain in the road's territory and believes Nebraska should have the best crop in its history.

While bearish "raids" on the market have been in the main responsible for the recent weakness that has developed in the speculative favorites, there is no doubt that last week's campaign forced out considerable liquidation of weakly-held stocks. Exhausted margins and the uncovering of stop-loss orders undoubtedly accounted for a good portion of Friday's and Saturday's deluge of selling and the outlook for the small investor is by no means as bright as it was two weeks ago. The bears, of course, will be compelled to buy back the stocks they have sold short, and this will provide buying power from time to time. While there is nothing on which to base the prospect of a brilliant upswing in stocks, it is well to remember at this time the old Wall street adage, "Buy them when nobody wants them. Sell them when everybody wants them."

Further steady selling developed in U. S. Industrial Alcohol yesterday, forcing that stock back to new low levels for the year. This stock has been in a rather persistent downward trend for several months by reason of reports of disappointing nature of current earnings. Recently there has been a disposition to look for a downward adjustment in the present $6 annual dividend rate. The company reported net equal to $12.63 a share, or more than double regular dividend requirement for 1929. Following established schedule, directors should meet for dividend action on the last Thursday of the month, June 26. At the December meet last year an extra dividend of $1 a share was ordered in addition to the regular quarterly payment of $1.50 a share due at that time.

From a strictly long pull point of view, the railroad stocks have been given an important boost by the recent Supreme Court decision on the Hoch-Smith resolution, to the effect that the Interstate Commerce Commission is not authorized to make unduly low rates for the benefit of farmers. It will be remembered that the last ruling favoring the rails, namely the O'Fallon decision, came at an inopportune market occasion, and it exerted little immediate influence on carrier stock prices until the market had settled down to normalcy, when a pronounced bull movement in this division set in. Leading bankers recommend for long pull holdings committments in Alleghany Corporation, Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, New York Central, New Haven, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

Grant Official Sees Gain in Buying

In the buying of general merchandise priced at one dollar or less, indications are that the United States has been showing increasing activity since the first of the year, according to a statement by B. A. Rowe, president of the W. T. Grant chain of stores operating in 34 states.

Although the large increases in sales during April and May of this year against the same period last year are partly due to the operations of new stores, the May sales in the old stores also indicate a definite increase over the same period last year, according to Mr. Rowe. This leads to the belief that there has been much undue pessimism as regards the buying power of the country. Reports come from almost 300 stores operating in 34 different states and from contact with these local situations, it is felt that very definite improvement is already under way.

BANK JOURNAL SEES TRADE RECOVERY

Basic Business Forces Working Slowly Toward Condition of Stability

NEW YORK, June 10.—Underlying business forces are slowly but surely orientating themselves in the direction of recovery, says the business review of the current American Bankers Association Journal. It may even be said that the majority of these basic factors are now headed in the right direction, the review adds.

Some lines are due to recover much more quickly than others and a few are still downgrade but a certain degree of irregularity in our highly diversified economic system is an old story, the Journal's discussion comments.

Belief that the tide is rising is grounded on an examination of fundamental factors and strengthened by the more optimistic feeling now held by leading executives in the industrial, merchandising, public utility and banking fields. Probably the more hopeful sentiment has not yet spread widely throughout the public at large for the reason that it is not so apparent on the surface as it is to those in touch with plans and policies for the future.

OUTPUT HELD DOWN

Production has been held down this year so that it closely corresponds with actual demand throughout the list of major industries with very few exceptions, and these cases are usually explained by some special circumstances, such as the overproduction of petroleum, which is now being checked, the accumulation of lumber because of excess capacity combined with the building slump, or the virtual suspension of copper buying until the deadlock on prices was broken.

Retail trade this year has been going along fairly well. People must continue to buy food whether the stock market is up or down, clothes and shoes will not last forever, houses must be painted and kept in repair, household goods and supplies must be replenished and gasoline and tires purchased for the car.

1931 PROSPECTS GOOD

The present outlook to summarize expressed opinions of those regarded as authorities, is that little tangible improvement has been made thus far. The date of expected revival has had to be postponed a few weeks, but should be clearly apparent this fall and we should go into the new year with things generally up-grade. Therefore 1930 will on the whole be subnormal, but 1931 ought to be good. This does not mean a boom year, but an ordinarily good business year. Few, in fact, expect any business boom for some time to come.

RAILROAD SPAN BEING RUSHED

MONONGAHELA, Pa., June 10.—If present construction programs carry through and no unforseen obstacles arise, traffic will be started on or about January 1, 1931 on the branch line of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad which is being built through the Monongahela Valley.

Structural steel work on the structure is well under way with work on the middle span scheduled to start soon. Speedier work through June and July is planned.

The bridge will be one of the highest railroad spans in the Pittsburgh district. Tracks of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia line will be carried on the upper deck. The lower deck will carry the tracks of an inter-plant railroad giving direct rail facilities between the Monessen and Allenport plants of the Pittsburgh Steel Company.

Work will soon be pushed rapidly on the building of a six-mile spur line connecting the new branch and the Donora Southern Railroad at Baird.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"Come into the garden, Maud"

The words were spoken seemingly, even insultingly, in a falsetto, by one Horace Thompson.

Horace was heavy and hussy. He worked in the shipping room of a big corporation and wrestled heavy crates and things by day. He dwelt with sundry others, in Mrs. Ellison's rooming house.

Horace [illegible] several [illegible] their backs [illegible] ghastly [illegible] available [illegible] but Miss Walton [illegible] another [illegible] happened [illegible] Maud [illegible] if anyone [illegible] this.

Dan [illegible] was in the back yard [illegible] flower seeds. He was endeavoring to make [illegible] garden. Hoc [illegible] falsetto had been directed at Dan.

Dan flushed angrily. He stood up and looked at Horace who was grinning as he sat at his window sill. Dan was lithe and pale. He had been at Mrs. Ellison's only a few days, coming directly from a hospital where he had gone to recover from [illegible] resulting from a shipwreck.

When Gussie Smith tittered Horace considered it an encore, so he repeated the words in the falsetto [illegible].

"Stow that stuff, Irma," Dan said, angrily.

"Who's Irma for?" demanded Horace, speaking in his deepest bass. It effect.

"Come down and find out," Dan said, evenly.

Horace Thompson promptly went down into the back yard.

"Thompson," Miss Walton called in a frightened voice, "don't you dare."

Horace didn't heed her. He went straight up to Dan.

"Do your stuff, you big pansy," Horace said.

Doing His Stuff

Dan did his stuff and he did it quickly. He clipped Horace with beautiful science right on the button, and Horace sagged down on the freshly spaded soil to hear the ladies sing. Mrs. Ellison hurried out.

"Sorry, Mrs. Ellison," Dan said, "but being called a pansy by any of your footmats isn't in my bargain with you."

Horace sat up and blinked. He shook his head and recalled what had happened. His expression was one of sheer surprise.

"If you can't behave yourself, Mr. Thompson," Mrs. Ellison said, trying to keep from laughing, "you'll have to get another room. Mr. Jordon here is just out of the hospital and he's awfully weak."

"Weak?" asked Horace, feeling of his aching jaw. Then he got up and extended his hand.

"Old man, my error. I had it coming to me for calling you a pansy. You're no pansy and, what's more, if I had known about you just being from a hospital—"

"Forget it," said Dan, shaking hands.

Gussie Smith tittered again. Horace offered to help Dan spade the little fenced-in back yard. Dan explained that the doctors had told him to stay out in the air and to exercise moderately. It was getting too dark to do any more.

They sat on the back steps and Horace remarked that when Dan got really good and strong he should get into the boxing game.

"Don't like to fight," Dan said.

Horace offered when Dan remarked that he didn't want to go to sea again, to get him a job in the shipping room where he worked.

"Can't stay cooped up indoors," Dan explained.

Miss Walton, sitting by her window, felt sorry for the man. She also felt sorry for herself. Six days a week she worked in the counting room of a big department store. She, too, hated to be cooped up indoors.

The next day being Saturday, Miss Walton was in her room by 2 o'clock. She watched Dan Jordan working on the little back garden. He didn't know a thing about it, she could see. She came down to help him.

"If you don't mind, Mr. Jordan," she said, rather timidly, "I'll help you."

"I suppose I'm doing as bad a job at gardening as a landlubber would do at navigation. I wish you would tell me," he said, gratefully.

"You are planting the dahlia bulbs upside down!"

Afraid of Girls

Miss Walton knelt on a newspaper and, with the trowel, proceeded to show him. Then she explained about the flowers that needed shade, and he was about to plant them in the sun.

When she saw a packet of tomato seeds she couldn't help laughing.

"They would just about start to blossom at frost time," she explained. "You have to get plants and set them out."

She worked with him all the afternoon. Dan made her go out to a little Italian place with him for dinner. She made him talk of the sea. Dan was quite frank about himself. He was born on a barge and ran away to sea when he was 12.

"I've had enough of it, Miss Walton," he said, "but I don't know what to do ashore to earn a living. I can't work inside and you see what a dumb farmer I am. If I knew as much as you about it, I'd buy a little farm."

This surprised Miss Walton. She didn't suspect he had money enough.

"I have a farm, Mr. Jordan. My old uncle lives on it. I'm working in the city to save money enough to live on it and hire the work done. It's pretty much run down."

Think of that, exclaimed Dan.

The following Saturday Miss Walton looked down from her window and saw Dan puttering in the little garden. He saw her.

"Hello, Farmer Dan!" she called brightly.

"Come into the garden, Maud," he invited.

From this it will be surmised that they had become much better acquainted during the week.

Maud Walton considered an old maid where she worked because she was 30 appeared in the garden wearing overalls. Dan watched her set out some plants, watched her thin out a bed of soil with ashes and plant radishes. She explained that radishes needed poor soil.

"Some day I'm going back to my little farm, Dan."

"Think of that!" Dan exclaimed.

Maud wished he'd say something else.

He did, finally. It was after dinner in the cool of the evening. They had gone to the park. What he said was:

"I used to be afraid of girls."

"I'm no girl, Dan."

Never in Love

"You are—and a mighty lovely girl. You're the only girl I ever felt sort of at home with."

"That's nice," Maud said. She hoped he would keep on and suggest that he marry her and always be at home with her, but Dan said nothing of the sort.

Horace Thompson came along with Gussie Smith.

"Ha," said Horace, "leave it to these sailors to collect sweethearts. I suppose you have one in every port, eh, Jordan?"

"Slow it, Horace—never had a sweetheart," Dan growled.

"He means before now," said Gussie with another giggle, and then she turned to Horace. "Let's tell 'em, Horace."

"Sure thing; me and Gussie are going to be married tomorrow. What do you think of them apples?"

"My dear," exclaimed Maud, "I'm glad. I know you'll be happy."

Gussie tittered.

Dan shook hands with Horace. He and Maud watched them walk away, arm in arm.

Maud was thinking that perhaps this would sort of give Dan an opening to suggest they do the same thing.

"It sure takes a lot of nerve for a man to marry," Dan remarked.

In her room that night Maud had a crying spell.

Dan, in his room, was having a "cussing spell." He was cussing himself for lacking the nerve to ask Maud to marry him. He told himself that she could only turn him down—which he felt she probably would do.

The very next Saturday when Dan came back to the rooming house with some more potted plants to set out—as an excuse to get Maud down to help him—he learned that Maud had been home and gone away.

"Her uncle died of a sudden," Mrs. Ellison told him.

"Where did she go?" Dan asked, suddenly feeling desperately blue.

Mrs. Ellison didn't remember. Next day Mrs. Ellison got a wire to send certain things Maud had left behind. Dan got the address then.

"I'm going to the funeral. I—er—knew the old man," Dan said, which wasn't true at all, "and I'll take those things along."

Sees Strange Face

Dan went to the country town and stopped at the inn. He sent out the suitcase and some flowers by a garage boy. Then he got cold feet and went back to the city.

The following Saturday afternoon Dan Jordan puttered in the little garden and saw a strange face at what had been Maud's window.

"Yes, I let the room. Miss Walton ain't comin' back. Too bad; she was a lovely roomer," Mrs. Ellison explained.

"Not coming back?" gasped Dan.

"That's what she wrote me."

Dan Jordan packed a small valise and went back to that country town.

It was still early when he got there. He left the car down the road and walked up. There was a garden at one side of the house, with deep red peonies, white lilacs and columbine. He sat down on a bench and lighted his pipe.

Not a sound came to him from within until he heard a shade being raised.

"Why, Dan!" cried Maud. Then she exclaimed, "Oh!" and dodged back. It had occurred to her that she was wearing a thin pink nightie.

"Maud!" Dan shouted.

Maud, with a kimono on, looked out again.

"Come into the garden, Maud," Dan said, boldly enough.

Maud dressed speedily and went down.

"Maud, I can't go on without you. Tell me what the devil a man says when he proposes?"

"You said it. You said you couldn't go on without me, and now I'll answer your proposal. I'll tell you that it would be silly for either of us to go on without the other. Come in and have some breakfast and I'll show you the farm and tomorrow we'll be married. Oh, Dan, I just knew that I would have a great romance in my life—but I never expected that it would be so perfectly romantic!"

Home Turkish Bath—A Valuable Health Contrivance

By Aunt Bella

This simple home-made Turkish bath can be constructed for a mere trifle and will pay you dividends in health and happiness. It is worth many times the small sum you paid out for your copy of this newspaper. Popular cabinets, sold by fresh salesmen, cost from $5 to $15. Aunt Bella's cabinet can be made by simply fashioning an opera cloak lined with sheet rubber (which may also be worn of an evening) and hanging the coat over a cane bottom chair under which is placed a kerosene lamp. If the cabinet does not work merely ask Aunt Bella to come out sometime and see what is the matter.

City Should Fight for New Loree Trunk Line

L. F. Loree, veteran railroad president, in the face of opposition by all the leading Eastern carriers, is resuming his fight before the Interstate Commerce Commission to gain permission to build a new railroad from Pittsburgh across Pennsylvania to connect with other Eastern lines.

The 344 miles of new railroad—entirely within this state—would give Pittsburgh a shorter route to the East than any now in existence. It would bring New York 100 miles closer to this city. It would have lower grades than any other trunk line to the East. It would move freight more rapidly and at a lower cost than any other line. It might result in reductions in freight rates from this city to many Eastern points.

The new line would cost over $177,000,000, all of which would be spent in Pennsylvania, much of it near Pittsburgh. Hundreds of Pittsburgh men would be given employment in building the line and in running it after its completion.

Strange to say, Pittsburgh's civic organizations have paid little attention to Loree's single-handed fight to build this line to Pittsburgh. The large membership of officials of competing railroads in the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations may offer the explanation.

An attempt by a man of Loree's standing to give this city a new railroad which would stimulate local industry and improve employment should not be met with indifference. It is the duty of the Chamber of Commerce and of Pittsburgh industry to enter the fight for the new line before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Foreign Policy Control Rests With the Senate

On the motion of Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, the Committee on Foreign Relations has very properly required of the Department of State all the diplomatic correspondence in its files that relates to the Geneva naval conference.

And on motion of Senator Johnson, of California, the same committee with equal propriety has required of the same department ALL the diplomatic correspondence in its files relating to the London naval conference, instead of the incomplete set of exchanges submitted in response to a previous request of the committee.

Both Senator Johnson and Senator Moses know full well, what every Senator should keep clearly in his mind, that the constitutional control of foreign policy under our system of government rests with the Senate and not with the President.

To the President the Constitution gives the right to negotiate a treaty, but to the Senate is reserved the final decision whether the treaty negotiated by the President shall be accepted or rejected.

Never has this system of control of foreign policy been more clearly expounded or more heartily defended than James Bryce thus expounds and defends it in "the American Commonwealth" in the following words:

"The Senate through its right of confirming or rejecting engagements with foreign powers, secures a general control over foreign policy . . . This control of foreign policy by the Senate does something to meet the difficulties which popular government find in dealing with foreign powers . . . The necessity of ratification by the Senate, in order to give effect to a treaty, enables the country to retire from a doubtful bargain . . . And it is a merit of the system of senatorial control that it has tended, by discouraging the executive from schemes which may prove resultless, TO DIMINISH THE TASTE FOR FOREIGN ENTERPRISES, AND TO SAVE THE COUNTRY FROM BEING ENTANGLED WITH ALLIANCES, PROTECTORATES, RESPONSIBILITIES OF ALL SORTS BEYOND ITS OWN FRONTIERS. IT IS THE EASIER FOR THE AMERICANS TO PRACTICE THIS RESERVE BECAUSE THEY NEED NO ALLIANCES, STAND UNASSAILABLE IN THEIR OWN HEMISPHERE."

It is high time that the Hoover administration acquaint itself with this AMERICAN SYSTEM OF SENATORIAL CONTROL OF FOREIGN POLICY.

It is high time that the Hoover administration begin to show a proper deference for the Constitution of the United States, which is the supreme law of the land, and the way to do that is for the Department of State to comply promptly and cheerfully to the very appropriate, because entirely constitutional, request of "the great committee of the Senate" that it be placed in immediate possession of ALL the diplomatic exchanges relating to both the Geneva and London naval conferences.

Unless and until all this correspondence is placed at the disposal of Chairman Borah and the members of the Committee on Foreign Relations, that committee should suspend further consideration of the London naval treaty.

Any reluctance on the part of the executive to obey the will of the Senate in this vital matter is a challenge to the constitutional power of the Senate which every Senator in Congress, loyal to his oath of office, should and doubtless will meet standing.

Parachutes

And Providence.

Henry (Buddy) Bushmeyer, most famous parachute jumper in the East and one of the most famous in the world, is dead as the result of an airplane crash on Long Island. He and his parachute were inseparable—he had survived 500 leaps in it. But for once he forgot to take it aloft with him. That was the time he needed it.

The odds were 1,000 to 1 against an accident, but the "black card" turned up.

Some will see in the incident only the price of carelessness. Others will call it the workings of blind chance or fate. Devout persons will view it as the act of an all-wise Providence whose intentions are veiled. Skeptics will term it one of those cosmic practical jokes which the gods of Olympus are wont to play on defenseless mortals.

A Tail Spin

Every once in a while the Supreme Court labors like a mountain and brings forth a mousetrap.

"Bugs" Baer

We know that the decisions of this august huddle are as final as a pallbearer's white gloves.

To hypothecate one of their opinions is to land yourself in the Chateau de Atlanta. Argue with them on strikes and balls and the next stop for your baggage is Hotel Leavenworth.

But we cannot see how our judicial aces figure that the buyer of booljuice is innocent while the seller is as guilty as an eye at a keyhole.

Suppose the seller is a wholesaler and the buyer is a retailer?

The buyer buys it with the intention of selling it. Therefore a man can steal a hoss and wagon and still be innocent if the hoss hasn't had his breakfast yet.

In the case of State versus People, volume 78, page 43, we find that Jasper Doogle staggered into court and was reprimanded by the look-out on the jury for making a left turn on round heels.

"We charge you with drunkenness," said the judge through an aperture in his teeth. "Guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty, Your Honor," said Jasper. "I bought it."

Jasper was discharged with an invitation to call again under happier circumstances and the jury awarded him a medal for sharpshooting.

We concede that the seller is generally culpable, especially at an auction sale of wrist watches. But in the rummister racket the dealer and the player are both tarred with the same brush.

The law says that you cannot throw the stone gently. And the same applies to the stone jug. This decision looks like an excuse to go out and do your own marketing.

A prohibition gendarme surprises a duke peddling corrosive sublimate of tonsil shellac to an imperfect stranger. Just as the seller is selling to the buyer the agent steps in.

The buyer immediately sells it back to the seller. That makes them both buyers. They're guilty when they're selling but innocent when they're buying. And this could go on until President Hoover actually caught a trout.

We would appreciate this decision of the Supreme Court if it lowered the price any.

But it doesn't. Which throws the case back into a position of status quart.

JAMES CLARK MAXWELL

By Archibald Henderson

On the walls of Einstein's study in Berlin hang the portraits of three Britons, whom he holds to be supreme in science: Newton, Faraday and Maxwell.

Maxwell was a master in the faculty of establishing a mathematical basis for physical theory, minutely working out the mathematical machinery which expressed the operation of the physical phenomena.

James Clerk Maxwell was born in Edinburgh, November 13, 1831. It is probable that he derived his scientific aptitude from his father who, while not a scientist by profession, loved to dabble in scientific experiments. He devoted himself to the task of educating his only son. At the Edinburgh Academy, which young Maxwell entered at the age of ten, he showed no special promise for some years.

When young Maxwell left Edinburgh Academy in 1847, not yet 16, he was "first in mathematics and in English and nearly first in Latin." In November of the same year he entered the University of Edinburgh, where he devoted much time to mathematics, natural philosophy, and logic. In addition to experimental research, he prepared material for two important papers: "The Theory of Rolling Curves" and "The Equilibrium of Elastic Solids." And he had yet not yet reached the age of 19!

On the family estate at Glenlair, where he spent his vacations, he had his own laboratory, where he privately carried on many experiments. In 1850 he entered Trinity College, Cambridge, being graduated four years later with high honor. After serving for a time as fellow at Trinity, he was appointed to the Professorship of Natural Philosophy at Aberdeen which post he held for four years, resigning in 1860 to accept a professorship at King's College, London. This post he held until 1865.

It was while he was at King's College that some of his most important papers were published, notably "Physical Lines of Force" and his greatest single contribution, "A Dynamical Theory of the Electromagnetic Field."

For some years Maxwell retired from university work, resuming it in 1870, on his election to the newly founded Professorship of Experimental Physics at Cambridge. It was he who superintended the planning and equipment of the now famous Cavendish Laboratory, of which he was director from 1871 until his untimely death, after a long illness, November 5, 1879.

Maxwell is remembered for his work in color vision, which was the laying of a quantitative foundation for the theory of color sensations proposed by Thomas Young. Maxwell expressed his measurements in a series of color equations, from which can be deduced the value of any color in terms of the three fundamental colors chosen as primary. These researches into the physics of color or vision are basic in the history of the subject.

Maxwell also performed important service in the field of molecular theory. By elaborate mathematics, he derived the exceedingly useful law of the distribution of velocities among molecules of a gas.

He found the value of the "mean free path," and thus rigorously showed that the value obtained was in substantial agreement with the value which he computed from data on the diffusion of gases.

His supreme contribution to science, which has proved a dominant factor in contemporary physics, lay in the field of electromagnetic theory. He made the astonishing discovery, by mathematical theory and calculation, that the electrical ether would transmit electrical waves with a speed exactly equal to that with which light was known to be transmitted.

This was an achievement of the first importance in the foundation of the electrodynamic theory of light. It may be said that he developed the mathematical machinery for explaining Faraday's experiments and conclusions regarding the electromagnetic field. It fell to the lot of Heinrich Hertz, a German scientist, rather than of Maxwell himself or one of his pupils, to verify experimentally Maxwell's epochal theory of electric waves.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD ∴

By Elsie Robinson

This time it's the Roundhouse broadcasting. Bruce talking things over with Fred. Listen in:

Dear Miss Robinson:

My engineer and I had an argument last evening. I am a locomotive fireman. He was telling me about his son, 15 years of age. It seems the boy doesn't care much for school studies. He is a lover of music, a dreamer. He asked me what I would do with a boy like that. My answer was this:

"Fred, if I had a son and I had my choice to govern his life, I would not care if he became a great man, a man of wealth or position—that doesn't mean anything. I would want him to be what my mother taught me to be—a lover of music and art—a dreamer who could see beauty in all things—who could work and sweat and smile when things went wrong—who would be tolerant—who would give the other fellow a break—who would forgive and forget—who would have faith in his fellow man. A SON WITH AN UNDERSTANDING HEART. That's the kind of a son I would pray to God to give me."

Fred said to me: "You have been that way yourself all your life and what did it get you? You are 32 years of age and you don't have a dime to show for it."

"Yes," I said, "financially, you're right. But I have lived and traveled, worked and loved; given two-thirds of what I earned away; dined with millionaires and slept with hoboes, and everywhere I have been I have found beauty in everything. That's all that really matters, anyway."

"Well, look at me," says Fred. "I am only 37 years of age and I own three houses, a nice car and money in the bank, and I don't give a damn about music or art or beauty, and I don't care what the other fellow does."

That was our conversation. I wish you would print it and give us your viewpoint. If you had a son, Miss Robinson, what would you want him to be?

BRUCE ALLEN STEELE.

If I had a son—

I had a son, Bruce. Raised him myself. Knew all the sweetness and joy of being a mother, and all the pride and fear of being a father. And dreams—so many different dreams. Dreams of seeing him rich and powerful—or just well and happy and beloved. But always with the dreams went fear. Fear of making some mistake that might hurt him in the years to come. There was so much in life—what should I choose for him? How should I set his feet straight? I hadn't chosen wisely for myself, or set my own feet straight—then, how could I guide him?

Over and over I asked myself those questions, Bruce, as thousands of mothers and fathers are asking them today. And at last there seemed to me but one answer. He was my boy. But he wasn't me. He didn't have my soul—and I didn't have his. We were two separate creatures. I could love him absolutely, but I couldn't decide life for him. I couldn't choose what he was to be. BUT I COULD GIVE HIM THE BREAKS, AND TAKE A CHANCE HE'D MAKE GOOD.

I could give him all I had—all the love and labor and faith and pride that was in me. And then trust him to do his best with it.

That's what I did with my son, Bruce. And I've never been sorry. My boy died when he was 21. That isn't very long, counted in years. But counted in character it was plenty. He lived long enough to make good. I don't know whether he'd have been a lawyer, or a locomotive engineer—a millionaire or a hobo—and I don't care. HE WAS A MAN. That was enough.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

As soon as mitosis had been accurately described, it was pointed out that if the chromosomes were the bearers of something essential for life, and if this something existed in the form of units strung along the chromosome, like beads along a string, then this longitudinal splitting would ensure that each daughter cell inherited a complete set of these essential somethings.

To these somethings we shall very shortly return. Let us remind ourselves once more that when growth takes place in our bodies, whether it be an increase of the whole body, or the thickening of a muscle as a response to regular exercise, or the growth of new skin on a cut, that growth is due to the active proliferation of thousands of tiny living cells.

H. G. Wells

At every one of the divisions of these cells mitosis takes place. At every division there is this sorting out of the chromosomes, this jealous and accurate sharing between cell and cell.

SECTION 2. HOW THE GAMETES ARE FORMED.

But there is one important exception to the statement made at the end of the last section. Most growth processes are, indeed, as we have described, but there is a peculiar difference in those processes which are concerned with the formation of sperms and egg cells.

In the normal process of cell division, we noted, a little bunch of chromosomes appears in the nucleus. These escape into the body of the cell when the bounding membrane of the nucleus breaks down and they arrange themselves at the middle of the spindle.

Each of the chromosomes then splits into two and half of it goes to each end of the spindle. Thus, the chromosomes are equally divided between the daughter cells; each daughter cell has the same number of chromosomes as had the original cell.

This question of chromosome number is very important indeed. Every cell in the body has a definite and fixed number of chromosomes. Moreover, the number is characteristic of the species. Every one of Mr. Everyman's cells has in its nucleus 48 chromosomes; Mr. Everyman's cells have 40, and so on.

Now for the exception. During the proliferation of the gametes there is an important division when the chromosomes behave differently. Before arranging themselves on the spindle, while they are still writhing about like eels in the nucleus, they come together in pairs.

Then the pairs move on to the spindle. When the sorting out begins the chromosomes do not divide into halves, but the pairs simply separate again, one member of the pair going to either end of the spindle.

Thus, each of the daughter cells has only half the number of chromosomes possessed by the original cell.

For this reason, this particular stage in the preparation of the gametes is called the reduction division.

In ordinary tissue growth the chromosomes are shared out between the daughter cells by actually halving them and giving a half to each cell. In the reduction division they are not split up, but shared out as wholes into two heaps, much as cards are dealt.

The gametes, then, have exactly half as many chromosomes as the cells of the zygote.

Mr. Everyman's spermatozoa carry 24 chromosomes each; Mr. Everymouses's 20.

In biological language, the gametes are "haploid," with a single set of chromosomes, while the zygote cells are "diploid," with two sets; these two words we shall use very frequently.

Men and women are diploid; sperms and eggs are haploid.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 10.—The rumor persists, although frequently denied, the Charles M. Schwab mansion a few steps from the beginning of Riverside Drive is to be demolished. It is perhaps the best known residence in town since the wrecking of Senator Clark's moss green-gabled castle on Fifth avenue.

The Schwab house was built some 20 years ago when the Drive was in the robust flush of aristocratic opulence and the course of its construction filled many columns in the daily press. It was one of the first houses to have a huge electrical pipe organ, a common equipment today.

The wide sweep of terraced lawn and the high spiked iron fence were something of a novelty even in that day. On each side of the yard is the cast iron statue of a mill puddler, symbolic of the great steel master's humble beginning as one of "the Carnegie boys."

Many of the oaken doors, dormer windows and mantels were removed from historic estates in France. Megaphonists of the rubberneck wagons continue to call out the many wonders as visitors are halted before the gates. In earlier days it blazed nightly with light.

Mr. Schwab gave many memorable parties there to millionaire friends, celebrated opera singers, authors, painters and novelists. But for the past ten years it has been cloaked in somnolent gloom. The lawn is well cared for but, save at intervals, the place appears remote and shuttered.

The steel magnate spends most of his time at his large country place at Loretto, Pa., where he is interested in stock raising and at his favorite recreation spot—Monte Carlo. Frequently on trips to New York he stops at one of the quiet hotels where serenity is not sacrificed for rushing service.

If the Schwab home comes down it will remove the last of the celebrated town houses skirting the rippling Hudson. The old Bishop Potter place long ago made way for a sky-shooting apartment house. Only the marble fronted palace of a cigaret millionaire, clinging like one of those tiny villages to a Pyrenean crag, remains.

Fifth avenue's private homes have suffered the fate of those on Riverside Drive. When Judge Gary's enormous red bricked house was wrecked to make way for the pale white shaft known as Pierre's hotel, Millionaire's Row became almost a solid phalanx of deluxe and smug apartment towers, known only by numbers.

Like the old story of the late Marcus Loew, who purchased the great house on the Delemar acres and was wandering through it several months later. During his prowl he opened what he thought was a closet door—and found 16 more rooms.

Frisco anxiously inquired of Sidney Skolsky the other day if Helen Twelvetrees happened to be any relation of Alice Woods?

An old school-day friend telephoned the other night he was bringing his son whom I had never seen around to call. I dug up a few spools and gimcracks I thought might amuse and expected to play pat-a-cake and tell him he was "a nice little man." But after 10 minutes, the lad, who proved to be a raw meat eating 180-pounder, departed. "I need sleep," he explained. "This New York gin is the McCoy."

Then there is the fellow who asked my frank opinion of a short story he had written about three years ago. I told him my honest opinion it was terrible. Since then he has written two successful novels and everywhere I go—there he is, surrounded by admiring readers, while I try to crawl under rugs and things.

"In my block," writes T., 48th street, "there are 12 speakeasies where I can get anything from beer to cointreau. There are regular bars, brass rails, old-time bartenders and little dishes of coffee, cloves and orange peel. I should be bothered about the passing of the saloon."

Keep on patronizing them and there are a lot of other things you will not have to bother about, including living.

An important gentleman asked me recently for some information. I called at his office yesterday to favor him. A cuff shooting secretary with a mirror complex informed me with slight arriere pensee the great man could not be disturbed. I don't mind the nabob's snub but I do mind the loss of sleep in staying awake all night writing him dirty letters, the big cheese.

I wonder if other New Yorkers at dusk now and then have a vague longing to sprinkle a lawn, hear the plaintive cry of a whippoor-will and watch the bright dart of lightning bugs from a porch hammock?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Why try to force yourself into a crowd where it is evident that you are unwelcome?

What is there to be gained from association, even for a brief period, with those who are not in sympathy with you?

For expediency or some other reason you may not be thrown out bodily, may even be tolerated, but where there is no sympathy of understanding there cannot be companionship.

If a person does not want you for a companion, why should you intrude?

In the first place it is very rude to try to force your company on others.

And if you have any pride you won't assume to be comfortable with those who have not signified a wish to include you.

One of the first things a child should learn is that it is unpardonable to burst into the conversation of others when none of the talk has been addressed to that child.

Sometimes parents feel that it is better to ignore little faults. They don't want to seem to nag.

But it might be better to say too much than to say too little to impress the lesson of waiting to be invited rather than have them subject to rebuffs as they grow older and gain a reputation for being too forward.
